Help? Sure Says Martin

PARIS (CP) — The United States has called on North Atlantic allies to provide more assistance in South Viet Nam but External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said he does not consider this appeal applies to Canada.

Industrial Zone Bombed

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Air Force F-105 jets today bombed the industrial complex on the outskirts of the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong. It was considered a major escalation of the war.

The American planes struck a thermal power plant only 14 miles from the vital city, which services the capital of Hanoi. They dumped 12 tons of 3,000-pound bombs on the plant but low clouds, dust and heavy smoke prevented an accurate assessment of damage.

The air force pilots reported heavy anti-aircraft fire but sighted no Soviet-supplied surface-to-air missiles, which are known to guard Haiphong.

One jet was reported shot down in the Haiphong raid. Its pilot was picked up at sea by a rescue plane amid geyers of water from exploding artillery shells and heavy gunfire from an approaching Communist junk.

Colonist 500 Fund

Broken Mind and Body Merits Generous Help

Mr. R. is too ill, both physically and emotionally, to hold a job, and he's alone with his six children.

For this broken family Christmas will be bleak even with a gift of cash from The Daily Colonist 500 Fund. But they will be one of the 500 Greater Victoria families to receive help from the fund this year.

Mr. R.'s first wife died in 1959 and the children were placed in foster homes for about one year until he met his second wife.

In 1960 they moved to Vancouver Island, but because of recurrent illness and lack of training, Mr. R. could seldom find adequate employment.

The family was forced to rely on social assistance. It has been on social assistance

Rendezvous Blueprint

Diagram above shows how Gemini 6 will overtake and rendezvous with Gemini 7 target craft 185 miles high. Solid line represents orbital path of Gemini 7 in circular orbit at 168 miles.

Gemini 6 (dotted line) will first be launched into an orbit ranging from 100 to 168 miles high and trail target craft by 1,236 miles. During the entire approach Gemini 6 will be flying a lower—thus shorter—orbit than Gemini 7 which will permit it to overtake target craft.

Three orbital changes are scheduled following the initial orbit. The first of these will raise the perigee (low point) of the orbit from 100 to 134 miles. The second will circularize the Gemini 6 orbit at 168 miles or 17 miles below that of Gemini 7. The third and last will raise the orbit to a circular path at 185 miles, the same as that of Gemini 7, to accomplish the rendezvous on the fourth orbit of Gemini 6.

The first orbital change will slow the catch-up rate and allow proper adjustment between the two spacecraft for the second change to circularize the Gemini 6 orbit at 168 miles. The final change will place Gemini 6 on the same orbit as Gemini 7 for rendezvous.

'Crummy, Itchy' Spacemen Ready for Latecomers

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Hunter spacecraft Gemini 6, poised for an historic rendezvous with twinspace Gemini 7, has a "go" signal for today's delayed space chase so vital to the United States' man-to-the-moon program.

Only the weather was a potential drawback to a 5:37 a.m. PST launch from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

"We're go at the moment and slightly ahead of schedule," launch officials said Tuesday night.

Weathermen predicted a return of the dense fog that shrouded the launch complex Tuesday morning, but said favorable conditions were developing and might keep the fog inland away from the cape.

The Gemini 7 spaceman, Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman and Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr., — getting "crummy and itchy" after 10 days in space — were awed observers Tuesday to a fiery plunge back to earth of a Minuteman missile.

"Bullseye!"

Borman cried when a tracking station asked whether he had seen the Minuteman, launched 20 minutes earlier from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California, streak back into the atmosphere after a 5,000-mile flight.

It was a spectacular sight, mission control said, and Borman seemed elated. But as the Gemini 7 pilots sped on in space, their attention was centered mainly on a launching pad at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

ANOTHER ITCHY PAIR

There, another pair of itchy American astronauts, navy Capt. Walter Schirra and air force Major Thomas Stafford, sweated out the third countdown of a Titan II rocket they fervently hoped would launch them in the Gemini 6 spaceship today.

They were itching for a different reason—to get on with a rendezvous mission twice postponed after the pair had entered the spacecraft.

'Biggest Clash Since '62'

NEW DELHI (AP)—India reported Tuesday that a clash between Indian and Chinese troops high in the Himalayas Sunday was the bloodiest since the 1962 border war.

A government spokesman said at least 30 Chinese bodies were counted after the fight, three miles northwest of Sese La Pass, 17,900 feet up in the mountains of northern Sikkim. India's report of her own casualties was two killed, seven missing, China previously claimed at least five Indians were slain.

PGE Walkout Appears Over

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—A 10-day walkout by Pacific Great Eastern trainmen appeared to be ending Tuesday as crews booked back for work.

Chickens on the Wing 'Cooked' in Own Heat

TOURS, France (UPI)—A cargo plane carrying 8,000 chickens had to turn back Tuesday when two attendants aboard were threatened with asphyxiation by the heat and carbon monoxide generated by the birds.

Overheated air billowed out of the plane when its windows and doors were thrown open upon landing. Many of the birds choked to death.

Britain Sticks to Policy

Black Africa Threat Fades

LONDON (CP)—Britain will not be deflected by outside pressures from its policy of applying economic and trade sanctions—as distinct from armed force — against Rhodesia. Prime Minister Wilson told Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, Nigerian premier, Tuesday night.

As Wilson conferred at 10 Downing Street with the Nigerian leader, it became increasingly apparent that few African governments will break relations with Britain as they have threatened to if Britain has not crushed breakthrough Rhodesia by then.

Authoritative sources said Wilson told Balewa he still believes sanctions, properly applied, will topple the white-minority Rhodesian regime of Ian Smith without the use of force.

THROUGH UN

The sources said Wilson feels tougher action against Rhodesia, which on Nov. 11 unilaterally declared itself independent, should be concentrated through the United Nations Security Council, which could call upon all countries to join Britain in its trade and financial embargo against Rhodesia.

ARRIVAL DELAYED

Balewa made a fog-delayed arrival in London to put before Wilson a Nigerian proposal for a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in Lagos next month to co-ordinate action against Smith's regime. His plane was diverted from London to northwestern England and he completed his journey here by train.

Wilson told the Nigerian leader he would consider the Commonwealth conference proposal, but felt the main offensive against the Smith regime would be best directed just now by Britain and through the UN.

OAU RESOLVE

Representatives of 36 African states—nine of them Commonwealth members—resolved at a ministerial council meeting of the Organization of African Unity Dec. 2 to break with Britain tonight if the Smith regime remained in power by then.

Sources here said Wilson has made clear to Commonwealth leaders that if they break relations with Britain their financial aid may be jeopardized.

LEADERS RECONSIDERING

A growing inclination to suspend the OAU ultimatum has been evident in recent days. Such leaders as Ethiopia's Emperor Haile Selassie and Kenya's President Jomo Kenyatta have called for reconsideration. A Commonwealth source indicated Tuesday night that even Tanzania might have a last-minute change of heart.

Guinea Severs Relations

LONDON (Reuters)—President Sekou Toure of Guinea announced the severance of relations with Britain and the closing of the British embassy in Conakry as from today in a nationwide broadcast shortly after midnight.

Canada Accepts Lagos Invitation

PARIS (CP) — Canada has accepted an invitation to participate in a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference on Rhodesia to take place in Lagos Jan. 10. External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said Tuesday.

Martin told reporters he believes this would be the first prime ministers' conference outside London.

The conference was proposed by Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa of Nigeria as a number of African countries threatened to break diplomatic relations with Britain because London is allegedly not taking sufficiently tough action against the outlawed Rhodesian white regime.

Martin said the Canadian acceptance was sent by Prime Minister Pearson.

He hoped the decision to hold the conference would cause any Commonwealth country which had threatened to break relations with Britain to reconsider their decision.

Zambia Sounds Out Russia, U.S. Views

LUSAKA, Zambia (Reuters)—Zambia said Tuesday night it will send high-ranking ministers to Washington and Moscow to discuss safeguarding the Kariba Dam it shares with Rhodesia.

A government statement said missions will be sent to the two capitals because Britain has consistently refused to accept demands to place troops on the Rhodesian side of the dam.

But the statement said Zambia will not sever diplomatic relations with Britain at present.

It said the government decided to send the missions because it considers it "necessary and timely that the views of other people be ascertained and to this end it has been found necessary to dispatch a high-powered mission of ministers to travel immediately to the U.S. and Russia, two of the leading member nations of the United Nations, to discuss this and other related matters.

For Beating Wife

Runaways' Dad Up in Court

MONTREAL (CP)—Vince Balent, 45, father of four runaway children who have established a new home for themselves in Vancouver, pleaded guilty Tuesday to grievously assaulting his wife.

Judge Roland Langlois postponed sentence.

Balent was arrested on a warrant sworn by his wife and was arraigned Saturday. The beating occurred last week.

Mrs. Balent was in court to hear her husband plead guilty. One side of her face was badly bruised.

Their children, Maria, 17, Milica, 14, Andre, 13, and Draga, 9, ran away from home at the end of August and went to Vancouver with money they had saved.

Maria has been working as a nurse's aide. The other children have been going to school and earning extra money on paper routes to help maintain their new home.

All are wards of the Vancouver Catholic Children's Aid Society, whose officials have described the children's new life as "model."

As Horror Tale Unfolds, Even the Townspeople Have Turned Ugly

No Jekyll in Hyde

By Edwin Roth
Colonist London Bureau

MANCHESTER, England — They look quite human as they sit in the polished defendants' dock of the magistrates' court in the industrial Manchester suburb of Hyde.

Again I feel somehow surprised — just as during the Auschwitz concentration camp trial in Frankfurt—that the most gruesome maniacs look exactly like ordinary people. Here too, nightmare abomination is concealed by human forms.

Ian Brady, a clerk, is small, slim, very insignificant looking, with a somewhat too large nose, a lot of brown hair over his narrow forehead, and seems younger than his 27 years.

Typist Myra Hindley, 23, is taller than he and looks comparatively stronger. She has much bushy bleached blonde hair which was originally dark, and has smeared plenty of lipstick and makeup on her large face. Her hard expression could give the completely wrong idea that she was a very busy prostitute.

Myra Hindley's black and white suit is the Sunday best of countless English girls. She has a cold—just like ordinary humans often have a cold in December.

ance, they might be accused of theft from a store.

On long raised benches behind the dock sit the public—almost all women, who have lined up for many hours in pouring rain outside the courthouse.

Between them and the defendants stand eight strong policemen—their faces turned to the public. Policemen with large dogs are on guard in the street outside. These are the biggest security measures ever taken at a British court, because the police have good reason to fear lynching attempts.

Already there were wild, very ugly scenes before the courthouse—the closest Britain has come to a lynch mob in modern times. Only recently the death penalty was abolished in Britain.

Petitions Signed

Hundreds of men and women outside the courthouse are signing petitions to parliament that the death penalty should be restored.

Ian Brady and Myra Hindley, who lived together with Myra Hindley's senile grandmother in a small one-family house in Hyde, are sexual perverts without normal interest in the opposite sex.

The case stands out despite Britain's criminal law with its unique weird tradition of bizarre mass murder—it is more horrible than the episode of Jack the Ripper who limited his murder mania to London prostitutes and was never caught.

It is more gruesome than the crimes of the hanged "acid bath killer" John Haigh who shot his victims painlessly to get their property—and more abominable than the deeds of the hanged mass murderer of women John Christie.

Here, children were tortured in perverted sex orgies with a strong element of black magic. Then they were murdered.

Three murders—a 17-year-old boy, a 12-year-old boy, and a 10-year-old girl—are in the indictment until now. But nobody knows yet how many children and teenagers were murdered and buried in the bleak Yorkshire moors near their home.

These are only the committal proceedings. Hyde's justices of the peace must decide whether the prosecution has enough evidence to send the defendants before a High Court judge and jury at an assize court.

According to the prosecution, Ian Brady and Myra Hindley would still be looking forward to their next murder if they had not deliberately invited Myra Hindley's young brother-in-law to show him a killing. Myra Hindley's 18-year-old sister Maureen is married to David Smith, 17.

Tall, slim David Smith, with very long hair, is a vicious professional thief with a long record of criminal violence. He is the worst violent criminal type of teenage "rocker"—and the prosecution's most important witness.

David and Maureen Smith lived very near Brady and Myra Hindley. According to Smith, he was asked by Brady to rob a bank with him, to take guns, and if necessary to kill. Brady said to Smith:

"I've already killed three or four. You don't believe me? I have photographs to prove it. I've buried them all in the moors. You've been sitting near to where I buried one of them. The best kind of person to kill is between 16 and 20, because the police just file them as missing persons."

Photographs

(Significantly, Smith mentioned Brady's photographs long before these horror pictures were found by the police.)

Smith also told the police how Brady, while drunk, had told him on the early morning of Oct. 2: "You don't believe I have killed. You don't believe I am capable. I'm not due for another three months. Before I kill anyone at home I move any evidence and hide it—just in case the house is searched."

Only four days later, half an hour before midnight on Oct. 6, Myra Hindley came to her brother-in-law's apartment and invited him to come home with her, saying that Brady had some miniature wine bottles for him. She took him into the kitchen, and went into the living room.

Next morning, Smith told the police:

"While I was alone in the kitchen, I heard the hell of a scream that went on and on. Then Myra shouted 'Dave, help him!' I ran into the living room. A boy of about 17 was lying half on the couch and half on the floor.

"He was facing upward, and Ian was standing over him with his legs on either side of him, hitting his head with an axe. The boy was screaming and screaming. Then Ian turned him over and hit him with the axe on the back of the head. After that the boy kind of giggled on the floor, and made a gurgling noise.

"Ian put a cord round his neck and pulled it till the gurgling stopped, swearing 'You dirty bastard! You dirty bastard!' Myra stood there all the time looking on, looking quite normal.

Smith told the police he was so afraid of the maniac killer that he did as ordered. Myra Hindley said "I can hear the yelling, but I told her I dropped an iron on my foot."

Then Myra Hindley made tea, and while all three were drinking tea (a really English note in the horror!) she said laughing to Brady: "Do you remember the time when we were burying a body on the moors, and a police car pulled up, and a policeman got out and asked me what was wrong?"

At 6 o'clock in the morning, David Smith telephoned the police from a telephone box near his home, and told about his night of horror. When detectives went into the murder house, they immediately found the body of 17-year-old Edward Evans—with 14 axe wounds on and around his head. In Ian Brady's pocket book was a written plan about how he would dispose of Evans.

"It is obvious," says prose-cut William Mars-Jones in the horror-filled court, "that Smith was deliberately lured to the house to see the killing, because Brady wanted to prove what he said about killing others—or because Brady wanted to implicate Smith in his doings, and so seal his lips and make him a willing tool for the rest of his life."

To the horrified magistrates and spectators, David Smith tells his nightmare story in terrible detail. He winces and looks ill which the black-headed axe is shown to him.

"Which side did Brady use?" asks prosecutor Mars-Jones. Smith hunches over the microphone, his long dark hair dropping into his face, and whispers: "The front piece—the blade of the axe."

Began Search

Smith's story began a sensational search for children's bodies on the Yorkshire moors. On Oct. 15, the police found in a shallow grave the body of 10-year-old Lesley Downey, who vanished from a street near her Manchester home last Christmas.

On the same day, a detective found in the back of Myra Hindley's prayer book a baggage check from a Manchester station. Its date was Oct. 5—the day before Evans' murder—which agreed with Smith's story about hidden evidence.

In the station's baggage depot were two cases with pornographic books about sadism and torture, photographic negatives, and tape recordings. Among the negatives were pornographic poses of naked, gagged little Lesley Downey.

Beside Grave

One photograph shows Myra Hindley posing beside Lesley Downey's grave—another on a spot only 370 yards away. Below this spot, the police found the body of 12-year-old John Kilbride, who vanished from a street near his Manchester home in November 1963.

The defense is that the murders were committed by David Smith, who has a record of criminal violence. But only rarely were murders so completely proved.

Because of the necessary long preparations, the Assize court trial will not begin before February or March. The defense lawyers want it held in another part of Britain. Although the present indictment contains "only" three murders, the police believe—because of several still unidentified photographs of places on the Yorkshire moors—that other bodies are buried there.

Garden Dug Up

From Hyde magistrates' court, I drive only a few minutes to the small, neat, clean house of horror. It is a corner house, with its garden dug up by the police. Two doors away lives Mrs. Elsie Masterson, whose 12-year-old daughter Patricia is a very important prosecution witness.

Still incredulous, Mrs. Masterson tells me: "Ian and Myra were ideal neighbors. They did not like the people next door, who live in the house between us, and never talked to them—because these neighbors were colored Jamaican immigrants. Myra always said these niggers have lowered the neighborhood."

settlement with the Soviet Union.

The allies could not expect to drive the Soviet Union out of Europe, he said.

At the NATO conference got under way, there was widespread speculation about new peace feelers from Hanoi. But Rusk knocked these down by saying there is no prospect of negotiations with North Vietnam and 128 ambassadorial talks with China only brought the old and unacceptable Peking statement that it would not be willing to negotiate with the U.S. until American forces get out of Formosa.

Martin said many countries are anxious that peace negotiations be initiated with Hanoi. He had held discussions on this issue here as well as in London and New York. He had met with Blair Seaborn, the Canadian delegate on the supervisory true commission in Viet Nam, who came to Paris during the NATO meeting. Hanoi still demanded the withdrawal of American forces from South Viet Nam as a condition for peace talks.

Your Good Health

These Are Problems for Skin Expert

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I have several skin problems. The skin is very oily. I also have blackheads and bumps under the skin. They are more like small boils.

Should I take vitamins or something for my blood? I had boils when I was a teen-ager, but my skin got better in my 20's and I don't see why I should have this trouble now.

I know what foods I can eat and what I can't—fresh fruit of any kind, eggs, chocolate, nuts, etc. Besides this I have brown spots on my face. Can you help me bleach them out without bleach cream which I cannot use?

I wash my face twice a day with oatmeal soap, and put alcohol on it at night. I hope you can help me.—MRS. W. J.

To such degree as I can, I try to offer help on skin problems, but most skin conditions have to be seen to be identified accurately.

The foregoing letter is fairly typical of quite a few that I get—and have to leave unanswered, because there is no universal remedy for complexion troubles, any more than there is any single medicine that "is good for anything that ails you."

I could make any number of suggestions to you, Mrs. W. J., but you would waste time and money trying them, and probably get little or no benefit.

Why? Because without seeing you, I have no way of guessing what the real trouble is, and if I don't know the trouble I certainly can't guess at the right approach.

SEE DOCTOR

Many people have learned to see their doctor when they detect suspicious symptoms. Yet some don't often do so when one particular organ is involved: the skin!

So instead of relying on the oatmeal soap, alcohol rinses and other home remedies, go to a dermatologist and find out (a) what your troubles really are; (b) whether any of the things you are doing can help; or (c) whether they may even be harmful; and (d) what you CAN do that will improve the health of your skin.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, now 17, had all three Sabin polio vaccine doses in a mass immunization in 1962. Does she need any boosters now? Doctors in our city are not in agreement about this.—W. C. R.

She should have a fourth dose, and preferably should have had it one year after the third. Then, one booster every five years.

Note to H.G.B.: From your description, I'd agree with your guess that it may be seborrheic dermatitis of the scalp, but in view of the location, keeping your scalp and your hat band clean may not really do anything. Suppose that your skin is sensitive to something (dye, or whatever) in the hat band? Why not go without a hat, or try hats that don't have such bands, for a time and see if it helps? If so, you have a precious clue.

Wilson Flies To U.S.

By GEOFFREY WHITEHEAD

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson flies to the United States today for vital talks with President Johnson which may set the theme of Anglo-American defence relations for the next 20 years.

The dominant topic at their one-day meeting Friday will be the question of how far Britain can continue to play a global defence role — especially in Southeast Asia — and at the same time check the nation's spiralling defence costs.

Wilson's Labor government is pledged to keep defence spending down to £2,000,000,000 (£2,000,000,000) a year at 1964 costs by the end of this decade.

COST-SHARING

An authoritative government source said Wilson will ask Johnson for his ideas in sharing defence costs, spreading military commitments to avoid duplication between the countries and achieving closer planning links with Australia and New Zealand.

The answers given by the American leader may largely determine the British government's final decisions on the nation's new defence policies, due to be announced in February.

Wilson ordered a massive review of Britain's defence costs when he took office a year ago.

PRIORITIES?

The prime minister, the source said, will ask Johnson to outline what he thinks British defence priorities should be and how they should fit in with Western strategy.

The two leaders also will discuss the Rhodesia independence crisis and there was speculation here they might reach agreement on imposing oil sanctions against Ian Smith's break-away white-minority regime.

MAJOR REASON

But Wilson, the source said, is anxious that the Rhodesian crisis should not overshadow the defence talks, which he considers the major reason for his trip.

The Wilson-Johnson discussions will also range over NATO nuclear sharing problems; prospects of an East-West treaty to ban the spread of nuclear weapons; the Vietnam war; Malaysia, and international economic problems.

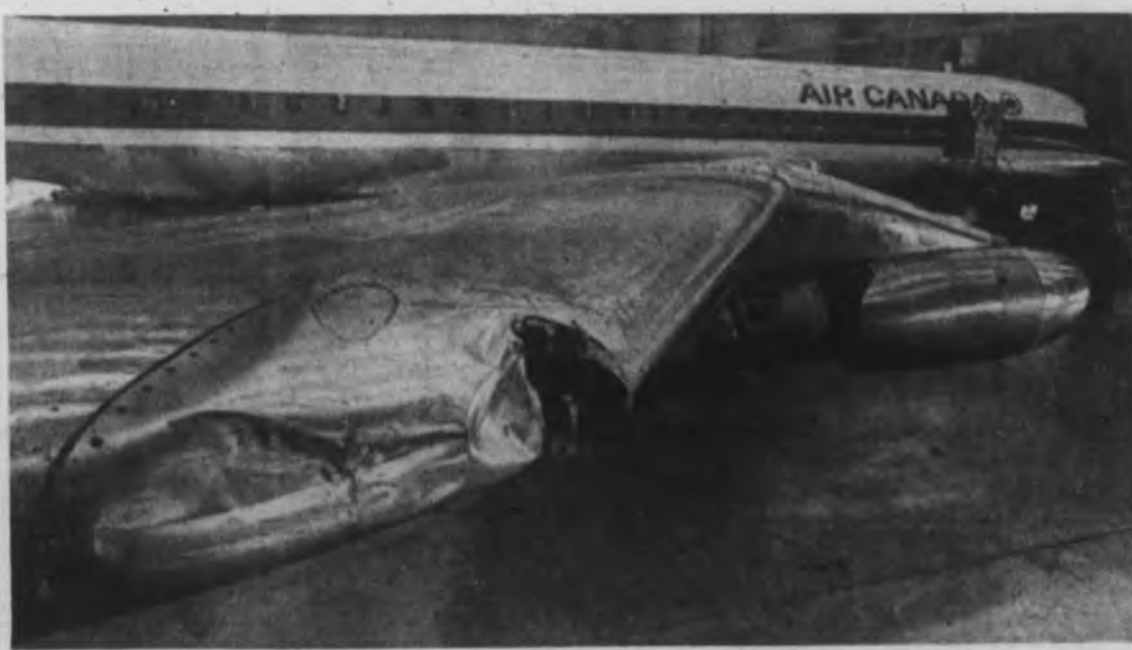

Crewman Testifies

Repairs Spurned

MIAMI (AP) — The crew member in charge of maintaining the lifeboats aboard the cruise ship Yarmouth Castle testified Tuesday that his efforts to repair them were rebuffed by his superiors.

The cruise liner sank off the Bahamas Nov. 13 with a loss of 90 lives, including those of two Canadians.

The maintenance man, Jamaican Robert Newman, said he told the chief mate that some

Jetliners Brush Wingtips

VANCOUVER (CP) — Repairs were made Tuesday to the wingtips of DC-8 jets owned by Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Airlines after they brushed together at Vancouver International Airport Monday night.

Spokesman for the two airlines said the accident occurred as the Air Canada jet taxied out to begin a flight to eastern Canada.

The plane brushed wingtips with the CPA jet, which was standing empty after a flight from Honolulu. There were no injuries and the 68 passengers aboard the Air Canada flight left on another plane four hours later.

Short wingtip sections on both planes were replaced and the CPA jet left Tuesday on a regular flight to Amsterdam.

'Boy Promoter' Wins Parole

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Caldwell, "boy promoter" sentenced to six years in 1962 for his part in a giant stock promotion fraud, has been released on parole.

B. Kyle Stevenson, a representative of the National Parole Board, announced Tuesday that Caldwell, a roly-poly little man who liked bowler hats, gloves and a cane and who had a way of attracting publicity, was released from William Head Prison on Vancouver Island Dec. 9.

LATER DECISION

Caldwell's bid for parole was rejected recently. But two days later, after a review by the parole board, it was approved.

Caldough, then 34, was sentenced for his part in an operation in which investors from Florida to California were bilked of about $400,000.

COMMON CHEATING

"You have been found guilty of taking part in a gigantic swindle, of common cheating, which is one of the lowest forms of human behavior," Mr. Justice

H. A. McLean said in passing sentence.

Caldough bounced into the headlines in 1959 as a beaming financier. He had a $70,000 home in plush British Properties. He was dicker to buy the $100,000 yacht of Errol Flynn when the actor died here.

DEFENDED HIMSELF

To bring Caldwell to trial the B.C. government had to extradite him from Great Britain. He defended himself in his two trials and managed to promote newspaper space by his infectious humor inside and outside court.

Even from jail he attracted attention. From Oakalla prison he once wrote to a friend: "I enjoy the life I am stuck with."

"I am still firmly convinced that there are more people on the outside living in prisons of their own making — dead-end jobs, dreary lives, etc."

He complained he had no mail from his former society friends.

Smooth talk will never make a whisky mellow.

Extra charcoal filtering will. That's why every drop of Gooderham's Brown Jug is filtered through layer after layer of hard maple charcoal. It's a slow process, but we're in no hurry. In fact when it's finished, we take the time to do it all over again. Just to make sure Brown Jug is perfectly polished. Remember that when someone tries to smooth-talk you into buying another brand of whisky. The charcoal filtering story is printed on the back of every bottle of Gooderham's Brown Jug. Why don't you pick one up and read it sometime?

De Gaulle Not Anti-U.S.

PARIS (CP) — President de Gaulle said Tuesday night the United States "is becoming an interventionist power," but declared "I'm not anti-American."

In a television appearance, de Gaulle seemed anxious to meet the charges of his Socialist opponent in Sunday's runoff election for the French presidency. Francois Mitterrand, that he has damaged traditional friendly ties with the U.S. a good friend and ally of the U.S. but also is on good terms with Communist Eastern Europe, has little contact with China and is a friend of Latin America, Africa, India and Japan.

Michel Drott, editor of the weekly newspaper Figaro Littéraire, asked de Gaulle about the charge he is anti-American.

De Gaulle replied: "In reality who has been the ally of the Americans from start to finish if not the France of de Gaulle?"

"There has never been another, and, in case of need, if the unhappy event should arrive and if the liberty of the world was threatened, who would automatically be the best allies if not France and the United States, as they have often been in such a case?"

Earlier, Mitterrand admitted he and the president are in agreement in some things.

He said in a radio talk he agrees with de Gaulle that NATO should be revised. He also opposes the U.S.-proposed Multilateral Nuclear Force for NATO.

But Mitterrand attacked de Gaulle's maintenance of a French nuclear force.

Mitterrand appealed to voters as the representative against de Gaulle of "all those who are opposed to personal power and who accept a minimum of conditions for the establishment of a real democracy."

Messages Praise Trail Feat

TRAIL (CP) — Presuming today is the same as the last 4,007, Trail will end its 11th year without a traffic fatality. The record of this city in the west Kootenays is the best in North America for communities with populations between 10,000 and 25,000.

Messages of congratulations have been received from Prime Minister Pearson, Premier Bennett and various traffic and pedestrian safety groups.

The last fatality was on Dec. 15, 1954, when Janet Hurlbert, 4½, was struck by a car.

Dwindling Strength

THE BOAST OF Mr. Paul Hellyer, Canada's defence minister, that he has achieved his target of reducing the numerical strength of the armed forces by 10,000 men a whole ten months ahead of the target date, has a hollow and a doubtful ring.

The fact is that men are quitting the armed services in unprecedented numbers.

Air Vice Marshal E. M. Reyno, deputy chief of personnel, admitted in a recent address to the RCAF in Trenton that 12 per cent of personnel were quitting the service annually. The army rate was higher, at 14 per cent. The navy rate of dropout had reached an alarming 16 per cent.

In one branch of the RCAF, the service police, no less than 23 per cent was the rate of severance, he admitted.

According to one Ottawa source, not identified by The Canadian Press which quoted it, Canada has reached a point where "our (military) commitments are greater than the available manpower can handle."

Lt.-Gen. Frank Fleury, comptroller-general of the armed forces, blames the attractive civilian employment situation for the exodus of servicemen.

Other officials, who have also insisted on anonymity in their statements to Canadian Press, say only some form of cash bonus is an effective means of keeping trained and skilled men in service.

A man with ten years' service is worth about $400,000 to the country in terms of training costs and wages.

Even Mr. Hellyer's personal RCAF chauffeur has quit.

According to the Hellyer plan, numerical strength of the armed forces was to have been 110,000 in 1966. It is already estimated to be well below this figure... and the end not in sight. In fact, the planned reduction of strength is no longer under control.

The truth is Mr. Hellyer's ambitious scheme to integrate the services, with ranks and uniforms common to all, the scrapping of the flags which distinguished each, the lopping off of men in so-called redundant posts, the dismissal of senior officers long before their normal retirement, created an atmosphere of uncertainty and dissatisfaction which now permeates the whole military structure.

He was warned on many occasions of the danger of destroying traditions so essential to a proud service. Men who, under our volunteer system, offered themselves for service in the past have had a choice of navy, army or air force.

Today they are asked to enlist in a unified command, a sort of hybrid thing. And they find it not attractive.

There would appear to be two alternatives for the minister to consider: a system of compulsory service—that awful word, conscription—or substantial increases in pay. Where, then, would be the vaunted savings in the department? With the finest equipment in the world, no security force can meet its obligations without skilled, experienced and dedicated men. We are losing them, and at a rate dangerous to the efficiency of the defence force.

Retiring with Grace

WE TALK OF VICTORIA being a naval town, and this is the postal label of the multiple municipal complex of the Greater Victoria community, but it is the component of Esquimalt which has the RCN establishment in its midst and has the closest links with the men in blue.

This was reflected a week ago when ceremonies headed by the flag officer, Rear-Admiral Sterling, were held at HMCS Naden to mark the retirement of Reeve A. C. Wurtele, himself a former commander of the senior service, from the municipal scene after lengthy direction of Esquimalt affairs.

For Reeve Wurtele last Saturday's elections would be viewed by him with unaccustomed objectivity. This was the first municipal poll test for 20 years in which he was not a contender, and, as his record confirmed, a successful one. He retires as the new year is ushered in after no fewer than 20 years on the Esquimalt council, the last 14 of which he has been at the helm of the municipality as its chief magistrate.

Two decades of continuous municipal office is the best evidence of the confidence which his people have reposed in him and the influence he has wielded in response to this trust. Under his reeve-ship Esquimalt has progressed visibly in many ways, and this quiet-spoken reeve, a tenacious believer in the autonomy of his municipality yet a partner in the many inter-municipal matters that are nowadays of common concern to Greater Victoria as a whole, has become a father-figure of his community and synonymous with its separate identity.

This progress will continue, under the new and young reeve-elect, Mr. Ray Bryant, who enlarges a family continuity already established by joining his father, Councillor James Bryant, a 16-year veteran of the Esquimalt municipal board, and the link both with the navy and with the combined area of Greater Victoria will be sustained. But Commander Wurtele can lay down his cares of office with grace and distinction. He has served his municipality well, and his name occupies an honored place in the annals of Esquimalt.

A Good Outlook

WITH MR. ALFRED W. TOONE chosen as their next mayor, Victorians will anticipate with confidence an unabated continuation of civic effort of the kind that has had such beneficial and beautifying effects in the downtown area in the last few years. This has been Mr. Toone's special interest as an alderman; he has played a leading part in the endeavor as chairman of committees dealing with improvement and beautification, urban renewal and the Centennial Square. And he has expressed the resolve to press ahead along these lines, within a reasonable tax structure.

It can be expected too that Mr. Hugh H. Stephen will prove a most valuable member of council in this regard, for though a newcomer to the aldermanic board he has been an outstanding figure in town and regional planning and other associated forms of community advancement. Like Mr. Toone's, his avowed determination is to help keep Victoria moving forward.

The city has had an extraordinarily progressive four years under the leadership of Mayor Wilson, and it will be with regret at his departure from office as well as gratitude for his distinguished service to them that the people of Victoria see him step down at the end of the year. Similarly, after 13 years as an alderman, Mr. M. H. Mooney will be much missed. But it is to be hoped that before too long, he will be back on council.

"Bread strike's still on—here she comes with her darn toffees and liquorice allsorts."

In Perspective

Western Hemisphere Security

By MAX FREEDMAN
from Washington

SEN. Robert F. Kennedy went to the heart of the matter when he said there is too much suspicion of the United States in Latin America now to permit a regional peace-keeping force to be established. This suspicion has deepened since the Dominican affair, and there is a general fear that the peace-keeping force, which would primarily be financed and supported by the United States, would soon become a mere instrument of Washington's policies. Thus a vague and doubtful principle of regional security would be used by the United States to justify more frequent armed intervention in the internal affairs of countries in Latin America.

As a reporter, Sen. Kennedy just back from his visit to Latin America, is unquestionably right in his assessment of public opinion. Secretary Dean Rusk recognized this fact and decided not to press for an immediate decision on the regional force at the recent meeting of the Inter-American System in Rio de Janeiro. But as a political philosopher, Sen. Kennedy has made a case that is incomplete.

There would have been no decision to send the U.S. Marines to the Dominican Republic if a regional force had been in existence or if the Inter-American System could have acted quickly and effectively. The most important fact of the Dominican crisis was not the impulsiveness of U.S. policy but the revelation of the stark deficiencies in the ability of Latin America to take effective regional action.

The critics of the United States in Latin America are caught in a logical dilemma of their own making. They resent the actions of the United States in the Dominican Republic because they lacked a regional sanction; and at the same time they fear a regional force would provide the sanction for similar interventions on the Dominican model. They cannot have it both ways.

One fact is certain. The United States will not stand by in helpless indignation while a

All of us have moved a long way from the rather superficial principle expressed by Charles Evans Hughes in 1928. Hughes, who in his great career was both U.S. secretary of state and chief justice, almost took it for granted that the United States in certain conditions had an uncontested right to intervene. He was particularly emphatic in defending intervention to prevent a collapse of law and order or to deal with the conditions created by a state of anarchy.

"Now, it is a principle of international law," said Hughes, "that in such a case a government is fully justified in taking action—I would call it intervention—for the purpose of protecting the lives and property of its nationals."

That need be said of this principle is that it no longer is an absolute and unquestioned right. Since 1928, with the United States often in the lead, it has been possible to limit and fetter this right by a number of regional agreements. It is precisely because the United States in the Dominican crisis seemed to be ignoring these precedents and outraging these principles that its actions have left a legacy of sullen suspicion. Yet the lesson of the Dominican experience must surely be not that intervention is never justified but that it always must be taken in fulfillment of agreed principles of regional security and, if at all possible, through the agency of a regional peace-keeping force.

It is good to know that Sen. Robert Kennedy is in favor of such a regional force and is ready to work for it later when present suspicions have faded. The tragic history of this question shows that Latin America always wants regional action after a crisis has developed which it did nothing to avert, and then forgets all about regional action once the crisis has passed. The help of Sen. Kennedy and of others like him will be desperately needed if this lamentable history is not to be repeated again.

Latin American Countries

Unready for Democracy

By FRANCIS B. KENT
from Rio de Janeiro

ANYONE who has paid much attention to recent events in Latin America cannot avoid asking himself: Is democracy possible in this part of the world?

It is often desirable? The answer to both questions, however reluctantly arrived at, must be a thinly qualified "no," or at least "not yet."

Democracy is one of those words that has been twisted almost beyond recognition, but it is used here in the old-fashioned sense of government by the people, and the people of most Latin American countries simply are not prepared for self-government.

This is a harsh statement, but it is not meant as an indictment of anything that might be called in error—the Latin American character. It is a statement of opinion that can be supported with facts.

Look at the map of Latin America and point to the countries where democracy in any real sense can be said to be working effectively. Where are the stable, viable governments that came to power through the elective process?

There are not many. Chile's probably comes as close to the mark as any, and Chile has been described as the least Latin of all Latin American countries. Uruguay, long known as the Switzerland of South America, a country where the democratic process is carried to extremes, is a mess. Its government is bankrupt and paralyzed by a score of splinter groups that can agree on almost nothing.

In the north and northwest—Venezuela, Colombia and Peru—guerrilla bands roam the backlands, harassing the governments and terrorizing the people.

Yet perhaps the most stunning failure of the democratic process has occurred here in Brazil, the largest and most populous of Latin American countries. Democracy, for the time being, has recently been written off as unworkable.

For six years, from 1966 to 1962, Brazil was a truly democratic country, and literally hundreds of public officials regarded the situation as an invitation to steal.

Federal, state and municipal treasuries were plundered. In 1962 the newly-elected president, Juscelino Kubitschek, shook his head and walked out, leaving Brazil in the hands of Joao Goulart.

Goulart, himself no Communist, nonetheless embraced the Communists and let them all but take over his government—with the result that the military rose up last year and threw him out, installing an army general in his place.

The general, Humberto Castello Branco, made a valiant effort to preserve at least a democratic facade. But when he permitted state elections, the people turned their backs on him and returned to office politicians who had been closely linked to the corrupt past.

The reaction was swift. Castello Branco abolished all political parties and assumed the authority to rule by decree. His successor, he announced, will not be chosen by the people but by Congress, and Congress must answer to the army.

For the better or for worse, democracy has disappeared from Brazil. Can Castello Branco be condemned, in a country where the voters not long ago elected both a goat and a rhinoceros to state legislatures?

This is not to argue that dictatorship is the answer for Latin America, even though Paraguay, under Gen. Alfredo Stroessner, is one of the most tranquil nations in the area. For the other side of the coin is Haiti, where Francois Duvalier ruthlessly keeps in thrall the hemisphere's most oppressed people. Dictatorship at its best is repugnant.

What is the answer? The Mexican approach? Mexico has been ruled for years by a single party known variously until 1946 when it became the Party of Revolutionary Institutions, or PRI. The PRI nominates a presidential candidate, and the candidate is elected. Opposition, although increasing somewhat, is scarcely more than nominal.

Yet since Mexico's revolution half a century ago the country has moved more or less steadily forward in terms of economic and social development, and in the view of many historians and sociologists is headed toward true democracy.

It has been argued that democracy requires a rare degree of political maturity and that such maturity cannot be attained where education is limited to a small fraction of the population. How, then, does one explain Uruguay and Argentina, where education is broadly based and the literacy rate is among the world's highest?

It might be better argued that democracy is the product of trial and error, arrived at only after generations of false starts.

But how many generations does it take?

Our Readers' Views

To be considered for publication in whole or in part, letters must be on subjects of general interest and if stated and necessary, must be accompanied by writer's name and address. Preference will be given to those that are brief.

A Right Denied

THERE has been quite a bit of publicity in connection with the subject of handicapped persons having the privilege of exercising their vote in elections. Our society is particularly interested as many of our multiple sclerosis patients and other handicapped are in hospitals, nursing homes, boarding houses and others confined to their homes in wheelchairs, using crutches, canes, and so on.

We received a letter from one of our handicapped members which we consider worthy of attention. This is what she says:

"I have never voted, not only because of the problem of wheelchair and steps, but because of the limited use of my hands would prevent me from marking my ballot. Would it not be possible to arrange for some type of mobile voting station to visit handicapped people in hospitals, nursing homes and private homes? And could not the officer of this mobile poll take an oath, which would enable him to mark the ballots of such people as myself?"

"I am certain there are hundreds of handicapped people like myself all over Canada, who are denied the privilege of exercising their franchise. I feel this situation should and could be simply rectified."

Pantomime

I have not always agreed with your theatre critic in his views, but must, wholeheartedly, in his write-up on Aladdin, until he joins his colleague Mr. O'Neill regarding earlier shows and matinees.

Do these gentlemen not realize that even if the children were out of school for daily shows, the cast, the greatest percentage of which are at business daily, could not be at the theatre; and this fact also applies to earlier evening shows.

Pantomime is all E. D. Ward Harris says and one late night a week (a year indeed) only adds to the excitement for children.

Greetings Innovation

From the Winnipeg Free Press

LEAVE IT TO THE Japanese to come up with a practical solution to what to do with old Christmas cards. A new type of card, offered in Japan for the first time this year, is made of chocolate, to be eaten after delivery.

This is an innovation that should be hailed with delight by youngsters and parents alike. No longer will the top of the television set be burdened with a "tree" of cards which keep falling down behind. No longer will the dining room be festooned with streamers of cards—the more elaborate ones to the front, the less elaborate well hidden. Comes the mail man, come the Christmas cards, and when the signatures have been read (presumably written with ink), the incoming stack will have disappeared down hungry gullets.

One can foresee difficulties, however, if the practice becomes general. To ensure safe delivery one presumes that a chocolate Christmas card would either have to be very well packed or delivered by hand. If it came through the mail badly packed, the children could spend a lot of time putting it together again to determine who sent it. This would be even worse than trying to decipher some of the signatures on ordinary cards received.

China's Economy

Slow Progress

By A. C. MILLER
from Hong Kong

WHEN AGRICULTURAL production in China falls, industrial production in China falls. So dependent is industry on agriculture, in fact, that two years of bad harvests can mean four or five years of industrial dislocations.

Such being the case, it is understandable that Communist Chinese planners gave up their blind drive for rapid industrialization after the collapse of the Great Leap Forward and turned their attention instead to developing agriculture.

Thus, since 1961, capital investment priority has been on agriculture rather than on heavy industry. And as a result, the country has recovered from the economic losses of the Great Leap and started moving, albeit slowly, again.

Yet even with emphasis on what economists agree is the proper sector of the economy, capital investment by the state remains relatively low.

As China prepares for the start of its third five-year plan for economic development in 1966, it will be forced to rely on a national budget not much larger than that of 1958. National needs, of course, have multiplied greatly during those eight years.

Official statistics on China's economy have not been published since 1960. Analysts of Chinese Communist affairs, therefore, must rely on general trends, on estimates and on information supplied by the few who are in a position to know and who have made their way out of Red China.

Up to 1960, however, the official figures on China's national income revealed steady development. In 1950, for example, state revenues were placed at $2.8 billion. By 1955 the figure was $10.9 billion, and in 1958, $16.7 billion.

The figures for 1959 and 1960, from a former staff member of China's ministry of finance—now living in Hong Kong—provide some illuminating insights into the country's national budget based on information available to him as an employee of the ministry.

According to this source, the state revenues for 1960 did not approach the official claim of $28 billion. National income was more in the neighborhood of $12 billion, he said.

"In the years following 1961," the source said, "continued decline in industrial and agricultural production kept the estimated annual revenues between 30 and 40 billion yuan ($12 billion to $16 billion)."

By 1964, he added, industrial and agricultural production appeared to have reached the previous high 1957 level. But the population increased considerably during that period so that per capita income must have fallen below the 1957 level.

"That means there could not have been a substantial increase in the state's estimated revenues for 1964," the source said. "Quite possibly the total was slightly larger than that of 1963, yet still remained at about 40 billion yuan ($16 billion)."

For 1965, the former finance ministry employee estimated national income at perhaps 45 or 50 billion yuan, or $18 billion to $20 billion.

Accepting the high $20 billion figure, that would still mean China was operating with a national budget less than one-fifth as large as that of the United States.

The meaning of this comes into clearer focus when it is realized that China's state budget controls more than two-fifths of the country's national income.

In dividing up the state budget, expenditures cover four basic fields: economic construction, social and cultural construction, national defence and administration.

Expenditures for defence and administration are estimated at $4 billion this year. But this does not include expenditures for new weapons and the manufacture of aircraft, tanks and guns, or for military research and experimentation or for the development of nuclear weapons.

According to analysts here, such expenditures more than likely are included in the state budget controls more than two-fifths of the country's national income.

As a result of so much indiscriminate mixing of investments under the four major fields, it is impossible to measure how much is spent in the various sectors of China's economy.

From official Peking pronouncements, however, it seems clear that national income falls far short of meeting national demands.

The Chinese leaders continue to insist on a policy of developing the nation by self-effort. This means, in essence, that the people in China are to build their own roads, irrigation systems, waterways, houses and even small factories without state financial help.

It seems clear, too, that agriculture continues to be the favorite non where state investment is involved.

China still has a rural economy and agricultural production remains the decisive factor in determining whether the nation truly progresses.

'Pensions Must Be Integrated'

TORONTO (CP) — Premier integrated with the Canada 39, but it was necessitated by the demands in some municipalities on the pension fund. This statement of government for "stacked" pension plans, Tuesday, decreeing that all municipal pension plans must be as one Mr. Roberts made Sept. Plan contributions, which will deducted from pay cheques starting Jan. 1, to be in addition to the pension premiums which municipal employees already pay.

MATCH FUNDS

At retirement this would mean up to $104 a month extra for employees earning up to $5,000 a year.

But the municipalities would have to match the employees' contributions of 1.8 per cent of wages. The government decided neither the employees nor the municipalities could afford it.

WILL AMEND PLANS

What will happen now is that the existing municipal pension plans will be amended so that contributions and eventual benefits will remain substantially the same even after the compulsory Canada Pension Plan comes into effect.

Mr. Roberts promised that no employee will receive any less retirement benefit because of the forced integration of the pension plans.

CNR, CPR

Railways Voice Pension Views

MONTREAL (CP) — The CPR announced Tuesday in view of the impending Canada and Quebec pension plans, it intends to "co-ordinate" its own private plan for CPR employees in Canada with the public schemes.

On the other hand, the CNR intends to deck its private plan on top of the public schemes, so far as employees working under a labor agreement are concerned, a CNR spokesman said.

For CNR employees not working under a labor agreement — a minority of the publicly-owned railway's work force — co-ordination rather than decking will be the policy.

INTERCHANGEABLE

The relationship between the public and private plans at CNR became known some time ago from information released to employees.

The terms "stacking" and "integrating" also are used in connection with the relationship between public and private plans. Officials of the two railways said stacking means the same thing as decking, and co-ordination is generally interchangeable with integration in pension terminology.

PLANS MODIFIED

In a decking arrangement, one plan is simply added to any second plan, with one operating independently of the other.

In a case of co-ordination, the conditions of one plan are modified to allow for the other.

Vatican Experts Open Tomb

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Vatican experts Monday night opened the tomb of 17th-century Swedish Queen Christina in the grotto beneath St. Peter's Basilica, a gesture allowed by Pope Paul in homage to the Swedish people and royal house.

The opening was authorized so the queen's death mask could be copied and the interior of the tomb photographed for an exhibition dedicated to her next summer in Stockholm. Queen Christina abdicated in 1655, and became a convert to Roman Catholicism.

Medical Team Offered by U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson proposed to Pakistan President Mohammed Ayub Khan Tuesday night that a U.S. team of medical teachers and scientists go to Pakistan to aid "human and physical problems."

Johnson made the proposal in a toast at a formal dinner at the White House, highlighting the first day of Ayub's two-day state visit to the United States.

The two leaders had conferred earlier Tuesday in what Ayub described as a frank but friendly private talk about key Asian problems — the Kashmir dispute and Viet Nam.

RURAL HEALTH

Tuesday night the soldier-statesman heard Johnson suggest the dispatching of a medical team which would be led by Dr. Donald Hornig, White House science adviser.

"Its mission," Johnson told Ayub, "would be to work with your own medical authorities in instituting a broad improvement in medical training — and in working with your people in improving rural health and public health."

Earlier, Ayub and Johnson talked privately.

FIRST WELCOMED

Ayub, who urged full U.S. support for settlement of the 18-year-old Kashmir dispute between his country and India, said of his nearly two-hour session with Johnson:

"He listened to me very patiently, and I am heartened."

Ayub, the first foreign chief of state welcomed by Johnson since May 17, was given full ceremonial treatment.

SHORT SPEECH

Johnson, in a brief speech of welcome on the White House grounds, stressed that Pakistan and the United States have much in common, saying:

"For one thing, each of our countries began as what most people called 'an impractical experiment.' No one expected us to survive. Yet here we are."

Widow Wins Case Against Powell

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 69-year-old Harlem widow Tuesday won a $575,000 judgment in state Supreme Court against Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., for allegedly transferring property to avoid paying her an earlier character defamation award.

Acting state Supreme Court Justice Maurice Wahl awarded $500,000 in punitive damages and $75,000 in compensatory damages to the widow, Mrs. Esther James.

SINCE 1963

Mrs. James has been trying since April, 1963, to collect a $18,500 defamation judgment from the Harlem congressman for calling her a "hagwoman" or graft collector for police on a television broadcast.

Mrs. James at first won a $211,500 defamation judgment against Powell but this later was reduced on appeal to $18,500. The outstanding debt to the widow was cut to $33,000 after Powell's attorney made a first payment.

In court Tuesday, Raymond Rubin, attorney for Mrs. James, charged the Congressman had transferred property in Puerto Rico with an assessed valuation of more than $50,000 to relatives of his wife, Yvette.

When he announced his verdict the judge said of Powell: "He's like a mackerel, he shines but smells to high heaven."

The judge added he was shocked by Powell's actions in the case and said: "I think a sentence in jail would do more good than a fine."

DEFIANCE OF LAW

Wahl said Powell had demonstrated "a monstrous defiance of the law."

Powell was not in court, as has been his habit during the last series of actions against him by Mrs. James. But his attorney, Henry Williams, appeared and questioned Rubin, who was the only witness in the three-hour hearing before Wahl.

VERY HAPPY

Mrs. James told newsmen outside the court she was "very happy" the court has put Mr. Powell in his place.

Powell's Washington office said the Harlem leader was in Puerto Rico and would not be available for comment.

Useful Items Gathered For Indians

Toys, clothing and other useful items for needy Indians of the Island are being gathered by Ian Fraser, the "Indians' Santa," this week. Mr. Fraser's headquarters are in a vacant store at 709 Johnson Street. New and used items are welcome, Mr. Fraser says, but he would prefer not to get money. — (Ian McKinn)

New Book Going Quickly

The latest book issued by Sidney publisher Gray Curphill has been selling at the rate of 1,000 a month and may be sold out by Christmas, according to Mr. Campbell.

The book — No Man Stands Alone by the late Amy V. Wilson — is the story of its author's life as a nurse in the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Published the first week in September, it has sold 3,000 copies by the end of November. Nurse Wilson died in Alberta in October.

Inspections Approved For Detention Homes

A new regulation allowing the chief probation officer to inspect juvenile detention homes in British Columbia was passed Tuesday by the provincial government.

A provincial cabinet order-in-council stated that on-site inspections can be made and that any juvenile detention home which is found to be operating unsatisfactorily or below minimum standards is to be reported to the attorney-general.

Inspections, to be made by the chief probation officer or his representative, are to include care and management of the children held in the homes as well as the physical facilities.

The regulation was made pursuant to the Family and Children's Court Act.

PRIVATE HOMES

Officials of the attorney-general's department said it pertains more to private detention homes which are being established in smaller communities throughout the province than to the larger-scale homes in Victoria and Vancouver.

They said the new regulation has no bearing whatsoever on an incident in the juvenile detention home on Pembroke Street on Aug. 2, in which a loaded revolver was reported to have been fired during a scuffle between a deputy night superintendent and an inmate.

Crippled Pensioner

Taxi Expenses Sought

TORONTO (CP) — A woman, left her paralyzed front legs down, able to walk only with braces and a cane or crutches.

Margaret Robinson was stricken with polio at five. It though, I'd get flayed and my muscles would go."

Where do you start and where do you stop? How do you decide what degree of impairment will be allowed?

"If a man breaks his leg and has to take a taxi for a few months should he be considered the same as a permanent cripple?"

"Allowing deductions would still give no aid to a person who is impaired and unable to make a living or to someone who has a small income. This might be a problem that is better solved, with grants."

In 1961 and 1964 she listed taxi fares as business expenses and deducted them from her income tax. Tax officials say she owes the government that money. They garnished some of her final salary in the summer. They cannot garnish her pension but if she tries to work to supplement it they could garnish those wages.

"It's a matter of principle and I refuse to give in," Miss Robinson says. "The law must be changed. There are too many crippled people who need some help. I'm no old fuddy-duddy and I'm going to fight."

Several similar cases have been before the income tax appeal board and have been dismissed.

Blind people and those confined to wheelchairs can deduct $500 from their taxable income. Miss Robinson uses a wheelchair occasionally but prefers to walk.

"I know my friends and family would prefer to push me because I walk slowly. If I ever just stuck to a wheelchair,

Huge Arms Deal Won by Britain

By JOE MORRIS Jr.
The Los Angeles Times

BEIRUT—Britain has snared the most lucrative international arms deal now going, out from under the noses of American competitors, who only a month ago thought they had it all sewed up.

It is a package air defense system for oil-rich Saudi Arabia worth $300,000,000 immediately and well over $500,000,000 in the long run. The political significance is hardly less important as it means the British will take over the Saudi Air Force training mission now operated by the United States and perhaps make further inroads into American influence in the country.

SIGNED LETTER

Prince Sultan Ibn Abdul Aziz, the Saudi defence minister, signed a letter of intent to buy the British package last Tuesday. It appears to have ended two years of intense competition in which the Americans had the inside track until the last minute.

Exactly why the Saudis switched is not clear. One reason appears to have been tepid official U.S. support for the American package. According to officials who were in on the bargaining, the Saudi government at one point thought the U.S. government actually was supporting the British offer over the American bid.

The major American firms involved included Lockheed, which wanted to sell the Saudi 40 F-104G jet fighter, Bendix and Page Communications, which was doing the radar and communications links, Cessna for the jet trainers and Raytheon for the Hawk ground-to-air missiles. The Saudis are still interested in buying the Hawks, which would add another $100,000,000 to the package price. But now the British are reportedly trying to replace the Hawks in the present package with British-made Thunderbird missiles.

In protracted negotiations, the American manufacturers finally offered to match the British price.

The new arms deal opens up infinite possibilities of expanding British influence. The American Air Force mission almost certainly will have to be replaced by the Royal Air Force. Operation of the Dhahran airfield could change hands. If the British manage to sell the Thunderbird missile, instead of the American Hawk, the same might apply to the U.S. training mission with the Saudi army.

None of this really explains why the Saudis made their last-minute switch and bought British. In fact, no convincing explanation has yet been offered.

Tories End Probe

OTTAWA (CP)—Lawyers for the Progressive Conservative party have completed their investigation of alleged election irregularities in Iles-de-la-Madeline.

A party spokesman said Tuesday that no decision on further action will be taken until party leader Diefenbaker returns from a Caribbean holiday Dec. 21.

FREED FROM JAIL

Charges of irregularities arose when Judge Joseph Duquay of Grandstone, Que., said he was telephoned by Forestry Minister Sauve on election day last Nov. 8 and that Mr. Sauve protested the release of two men from jail to vote. The two men had earlier been charged with threatening a Liberal.

The judge has said he received "at least two, possibly three" calls from Mr. Sauve, Liberal candidate in the riding, an island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

FURTHER ACTION

The party spokesman said that the preparations are being made as though further action will be taken, but he said this will rest with Mr. Diefenbaker. He said there are several courses open under the Canada Elections Act and that it is possible the matter will be raised in the Commons.

PRESS CONFERENCE

Meanwhile, Mr. Sauve has scheduled a press conference here for today when he is expected to deal with the allegations. He returned from Rome Sunday and said he was investigating the charges that had been made.

B.C. Hydro Calls For Tenders

The B.C. Hydro and Power Authority has called for tenders on 18.6 miles of underwater cable from the mainland to Vancouver Island.

The submarine power connection will join a Tsawwassen substation with a terminal station near Duncan, a distance of approximately 30 miles, a Hydro spokesman said.

The underwater portions of the line lie between the mainland and Galiano Island, a distance of 16.3 miles. Another 2.3 miles will be under Trincomali Channel.

The remaining 23 miles of the transmission route will be spanned by conventional aerial conductor.

Delivery of the submarine cable will be in the spring of 1968, the spokesman said.

Murder Camp Accused Weeps

FRANKFURT, Germany, (UPI) — The Nazis' alleged bureaucrat of death wept in self-pity Tuesday at the start of the second Auschwitz death camp trial.

Wilhelm Burger, accused of supplying the poison for the gas chambers that killed millions, wept and wrung his hands as he denied doing wrong.

"... I ... We didn't know about all the killing," said the red-faced defendant in West Germany's latest war crimes trial.

"I don't believe you," said presiding Judge Emil Opper. Burger, his wrinkled red face giving him the appearance of an ailing Santa Claus, and two other former Nazi elite stormtroopers were being tried for their part in running Adolf Hitler's grisliest death factory. An estimated 2,500,000 to 4,000,000 men, women and children perished at Auschwitz.

In August, another German court sentenced 17 other ex-Nazis to prison for their part in operating Auschwitz. That trial attracted massive publicity. It also revived the world's memory of the Nazi era. The resulting criticism of Germany soured many Germans on the trials. The change was evident Tuesday.

Only a fourth of the spectator seats were filled. The trial itself had been shifted to a side street courtroom. The big name lawyers and judges were gone. But the grim subject matter and the defendants' attitude remained the same.

Burger, 61-year-old salesman at Dachau, wept when he told of being jobless in 1932 and thus joining the Nazi SS. He wept when telling of having his face frozen on the Russian front and of his postwar days in American and Polish jails.

The indictment accuses him of also ordering and keeping tally on the deadly Zyklon-B gas. It also accuses Burger of picking out victims for the gas chambers.

Burger wept and trembled so much at one point that Judge Opper recessed the court.

Canada-U.S. Agreement

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The establishment of foreign-owned car assembly plants in Canada may become more difficult by the introduction of the Canadian-U.S. car trade agreement, it is felt in automotive circles.

With customs barriers entirely removed, provided certain Canadian content requirements are met, the U.S.-owned automobile firms in Canada are working under a mass market advantage that is not shared by car companies of other countries.

The proposed car assembly plant at Point Edwards, N.S., where it was planned to assemble Japanese cars, has been delayed for at least two years, because of doubts about the potential volume of business available.

MARKET NEEDED

The plant was to have been built by Canadian Motor Industries, a subsidiary of Clairmont Sound Co., which has the Canadian franchise on Toyota and Isuzu cars. It is reported to have sold about 1,800 of the 3,500 cars it has imported from Japan this year.

It is estimated that a market has to be found for at least 4,000 cars to make the Nova Scotia project feasible.

RESCUE OPERATION

Under a new arrangement it is understood that the two Japanese firms will acquire 90 per cent of the outstanding shares of C.M.I. following resignation of the president, D. W. Samuel.

Spokesman for the Japanese firms say it is a rescue operation but the reason for Mr. Samuel's departure was not disclosed. He is reported to have left for Austria.

STILL HOPEFUL

Although the Canadian assembly plant has been put on ice, the Japanese firms are still hopeful they can break into the North American market on a bigger scale than they have been doing.

The only other non-U.S. car manufacturer in Canada is Volvo of Sweden, which is turning out about 3,700 cars a year from its Dartmouth, N.S. plant.

WRECKING MARKET

Other car manufacturers who have been toying with the idea of assembly in Canada are known to have cooled off since it was realized that they would not enjoy the same free-trading facilities enjoyed by the Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. cars.

The pact is going a long way to wrecking the Canadian market for all foreign cars outside of Commonwealth and U.S. preference, in the view of one local importer.

MASSEY TROUBLES

The change-over earlier this year to new tractor models and long expensive labor troubles in its British plants, and drought in Australia, played their parts in reducing the net profits of Massey Ferguson Ltd. for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31.

In a preliminary estimate of the year's results, A. A. Thornbrough, president, says a net profit was $40,100,000 ($2.66 against $45,000,000 ($3.04) a year ago.

SALES RISE

Sales however continued to rise for the giant Canadian farm equipment manufacturer. The 1965 total of $808,500,000 compared with $772,000,000 in the previous year.

Mr. Thornbrough said it was believed the 1966 results would show an improvement on those of 1965.

He based his conjecture on the record fourth quarter in which Massey sales rose to $242,200,000 from $184,900,000 a year ago, while profits rose to $16,600,000 from $9,100,000.

DRILLERS GET BUSY

Fourteen oil drilling rigs are now reported to be at work in the Rainbow Lake area of northwestern Alberta. While the frost keeps the ground hard drilling is likely to continue at a fast clip.

NEAR OKANAGAN

An area near Peachland in the Okanagan is being tipped as the focal point of the next B.C. mining excitement.

A very large low-grade copper showing is reported from near the orchard town. It is owned by a private company, Brenda Lake, it is believed.

Apart from the fact that officials of a leading Canadian company are said to be interested, few details of the discovery have been made public.

INFLATION FEARED

Inflationary dangers were noted by William M. Currie, president of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, in his address to shareholders at the bank's annual general meeting this week.

He said pressures were building up to make it more difficult for Canada to maintain its four years of boom growth.

Higher prices for services; shortages of skilled labor; lengthening delivery dates and tightness of the money market were warning signals, but he said that despite these difficulties, the economy was still running well.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

We get a chance Monday night to judge for ourselves just what hope we have of regaining the "world" hockey championship. Or to put it another way, of seeing for ourselves how our amateurs stack up against the best of the Russian professionals.

Most of us, perhaps all of us, are going to be impressed with the team from the Soviet Union but the Russians are going to have to be indeed something out of the ordinary if they are to live up to the grading given them by Jacques Plante when he appeared as a guest commentator on Saturday night's National Hockey League television production.

Plante made much of the success Canada's national team has enjoyed this season against clubs from the Central Professional Hockey League in assessing the worth of the Russian team. Where most of us had been hopeful over this turn of events, Plante seemed downright overwhelmed.

"There isn't," he said with a straight face, "much difference between the Central and National leagues."

That kind of a statement doesn't just border on the ridiculous but it is a better commentary on Plante than it is on the calibre of Russian hockey.

Plante could hardly deny that he wouldn't have thought it a demotion had New York Rangers sent him to their Central league farm club when he was playing in the NHL and so one suspects that he was thinking ahead to tonight's game in Montreal, where he will tend goal against the touring Russian club. The way Plante has it, he can't lose. If the Russians riddle him it proves them great and if he can stop them it proves Plante great.

This is not to deny that the Russians may be getting good enough to be just about ready to seriously challenge Canada for the real world hockey supremacy. It's just that no one can take seriously anyone who says he has arrived at that conclusion believing there is little difference in the calibre of the NHL and the CPHL.

Just how good the Russians are remains a matter of controversy. There are differences at every level of hockey but in the main those concerned with amateur hockey rate them at least close to NHL calibre while most of those concerned with professional hockey are not at all prepared to grant them that status just yet.

Typical of the latter is Frank Mario, coach of the Victoria Maple Leafs.

"I think," he said yesterday at the hockey luncheon, "that they would finish last in the Western Hockey League."

He qualified the assertion by adding "if they played under our professional rules."

And that, probably, is where the difference is at the moment. I'm sure we will all agree after Monday night's game that the Russians will have passed with honors as regards skating, passing and positional play. And they will probably be better conditioned than many of our pros. We may leave Memorial Arena quite certain that Canada has had her last Olympic hockey gold medal. But that will hardly prove that they are now ready for Montreal Canadiens or Toronto Maple Leafs.

They might be if the games were played under international rules but it is one thing to skate, stay in position and make pretty passes when you know you won't get clobbered and another matter when there is an Eddie Shack or a John Ferguson looking hopefully around for someone with his head down.

And don't try to convince yourself that the virtually contactless hockey of international rules is the best hockey to watch. As a sometime thing it is refreshing and entertaining but as a steady diet it would be something akin to touch football. Hockey is a contact sport and Canadian and American hockey fans are contact fans. Hockey would eventually have to be subsidized on this continent if all of it was played the Ice Capades way.

Eventually, international hockey will have rules acceptable to all and the Russians will be able to play it as well as anyone. They have more natural ice than we have in Canada, hockey is at least close to now being their national sport and they have 10 times our population. We have no copyright on hockey skills and the Russians will some day produce more good hockey players than we can. Before they do, however, they will have to start playing our best under rules which make for better hockey than the no-touch hockey of international rules.

And it's about time there was a confrontation, not so much to settle the question of who is better as for the good of hockey—to hurry along the inevitable day when hockey will be a truly international sport at the top level and the Stanley Cup stands for true world supremacy.

Just who is to blame that there hasn't been one is confusing. The Russians have said that they are willing to play an NHL club anytime under any rules but at the same time they state their willingness to tangle with the Shacks, Fergusons, Flemings and Bauns they never quit screaming about the rough play of little fellows like Roger Bourbonnais. Professional hockey had seemed to be avoiding the issue because of everything-to-lose, nothing-to-gain thinking but now comes word from Toronto that the Maple Leafs are ready to restore Canadian hockey prestige but that Bunny Ahearne, director of the International Amateur Ice Hockey Federation, stands in the way.

It's getting a bit tedious. Sports should be a proving ground for the individual and the nations of the world can hardly avoid using bullets if they can't accept what happens in an arena as something less than war.

Speaking Briefly

Nicklaus Must Attend School

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, has to go back to school if he hopes to make the 1967 Ryder Cup team, and even that may not be enough.

This has been dictated by the Professional Golfers Association which runs the multi-million-dollar professional tournament circuit.

Under the PGA's complicated membership requirements, a player can't become a bona fide member until he has served a five-year apprenticeship.

But the rules provide that a player will be considered to have served one full year of tournament service for each week of attendance at one of the PGA's professional business schools.

Only official PGA members may play on the Ryder Cup team which meets Britain's best golfers every two years. Nicklaus hasn't qualified yet, although he's won virtually every major tournament and been leading money winner for the past two years.

MACK LEE HILL, 25, Kansas City Chiefs fullback, went into convulsions and died yesterday in the operating room of a Kansas City hospital, where he was under treatment for a ruptured knee ligament suffered Sunday in an American Football League game in Buffalo. The committee is expected to meet this week to decide which resort it will support.

Bids for Games

LAUSANNE (Reuters) — Two Swiss winter sports resorts, St. Moritz and Interlaken, have told the Swiss Olympic Committee they are ready to stage the 1972 winter Olympic Games.

The committee is expected to meet this week to decide which resort it will support.

Woeful Blades No Big Worry
Shorthanded Leafs Still Fly

LOS ANGELES 1, VICTORIA 5

By JIM TANG

Victoria Maple Leafs played their first game without Ed Litzenberger last night, they also had defenceman Aut Erickson on the missing list and Mike Labadie being used sparingly because of a muscle injury but they passed the test.

It might be said that Los Angeles Blades couldn't provide a real test but the Leafs were as much better as the 5-1 score hints. They were a bit disorganized by the necessary switching around during the early part of the game but they settled down and their scoring thrills still had that neat touch.

The rather easy victory was their 12th in an unbeaten streak at home which has now reached 14 games and it put their Western Hockey League lead back at eight points.

When the Blades, who didn't look any better than last time despite the addition of Howie Young, Jerry Toppazzini and Bernard Deschamps, couldn't do better than a scoreless first period they had lost their chance.

They had tough luck twice in the first four minutes as Norm Johnson and Marc Boileau both hit piping with Al Miller beaten. But they couldn't get the puck in when the Leafs were a bit sloppy trying to get adjusted and they didn't seriously threaten when they got the first two odd-man situations.

From there on, the Blades never looked like a threat. The Leafs got the first goal only 15 seconds into the second period, got a 2-0 lead and had it cut in two on a fluke goal, answered back immediately with their third and pulled away in the third period.

Mila Marveta, with the first two, and Lou Jankowski, with a bona fide hat-trick, looked after the Victoria scoring and the defence, after a shaky start and backed by a sharp Miller, took care of what Los Angeles offence there was.

POWER PLAY

Marveta opened the scoring at 15 seconds of the second period with the first of the three Victoria power-play goals. He took a pass near the centreline, went around John Hendrickson and beat a startled Marcel Pelletier with a fine shot to the short side.

Andy Heberton, who had put him away the first time, gave Marveta a second chance less than six minutes later. Then Jankowski put it away with his three goals, the first two on sizzling shots and the last by tucking the puck between Pelletier's legs after coming out from behind the Los Angeles goal.

TWO ASSISTS

Larry Keenan, who played his first game as a starter between Jankowski and Gordie Redahl when John Slevner had to be used on defence, drew assists on Jankowski's last two goals.

The Blades, who got their only goal on an 85-foot flip shot by Ray Larose which Miller didn't appear to see, showed their most life midway through the first period when Leo LaBine went out to get even with Bill Shvetz after taking an elbow.

LIVELY BRAWL

It started a lively brawl in which Shvetz was given a decision over LaBine and Los Angeles rookie Bill Orban may have earned a draw when he took on Sandy Hucul in a stand-up punching battle which must have lasted a minute.

All four combatants drew major penalties with Shvetz getting a minor as well for the elbow. The Leafs, with Fred Hucul playing seven straight minutes, just slowed things down to a walk until they got their defenceman back.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

The provincial fish and game branch has proposed a new regulation which would ban fishing for trout on the top end of the Cowichan River from Nov. 1 to March 1 each year.

The proposal, which is contained in a newly-released list of proposed changes to B.C. sport fishing regulations for 1966, would not apply to steelhead and would be in force from the weir at Cowichan Lake to the C.N.R. 70.2-mile bridge. This bridge is the one reached by walking along the railway tracks upstream from Skutz Falls, or downstream from the Cabin Pool.

Biologists say the new regulation is designed to protect spawning rainbow trout from Cowichan Lake in the upper river, both on their way to the spawning grounds and during the post-spawning period.

These fish are extremely vulnerable to a rapidly increasing fishery, they observe. This regulation would cut out some fabulous fishing, but we feel it would be all to the good. We drifted the top end of the Cowichan this year during the height of this rainbow trout fishing and it certainly was distressing to see some of the black rainbow trout that were being taken by some anglers.

These same fish are in the river in March and April, but in first-class silvery condition, and full of fight.

The fish and game branch invites comments about proposed changes in the regulations and asks that any suggestions be received in the fish and game branch office before Jan. 5.

Another change would legalize the use of two lines when angling alone in a boat.

Another would legalize the use of strip and whole smelt or herring for bait.

Biologists explain that as these fish will not live in fresh water there is no danger of introduction of undesirable species.

Actually, we were under the impression that use of strip was legal and several years ago—statute of limitations now applies—we used small Strip-Teaser and flasher in the Shaw Creek area of Cowichan Lake to catch several trout in the seven to four-pound class.

The fish and game branch is moving to provide maximum protection for both summer and winter spawners in the section of the Puntledge River where a spawning channel has recently been constructed.

Fishing for any game fish or salmon would be prohibited in that portion of the Puntledge river below the dam designated by fishing boundary signs below the B.C. Hydro dam, upstream to the storage dam at the outlet of Comox Lake.

Proposed regulations suggest that Dec. 15 to March 31 closures on parts of the Little Qualicum, Englishman, Nitinat and Sarita Rivers be revoked because "they are no longer required."

We hesitate to go along with this regulation without further study. These closures were brought in to stop exploitation of so-called jigging pools in hang-up spots.

We rather expected there would be more regulations closing certain parts of certain rivers at certain times, especially like Harris Creek, where jiggers are often very much in evidence.

To still be included in the Dec. 15 to March 31 closures are the Big Qualicum River, from the lower falls below Horne Lake downstream 300 yards to boundary signs; Koksilah River from Marble Falls upstream to a point below Marble Canyon; China Creek, all waters upstream from a point 300 yards above the bridge on Franklin River Road; Ash River, from Dixon Falls, 300 yards downstream.

The closed period on the Hober would be shortened one month as recommended by regional biologists, to Sept. 16 to April 30, instead of the existing closure from Aug. 16 to April 20.

Of special interest to all anglers who object to the use of fish roe and oil for angling is a proposed regulation which would ban the use of roe in the Morice, Kispiox, Zymoetz, Kildat, and Lakelse Rivers. Previously only the Morice and Kispiox had roe bans in force.

U.K. Soccer in Tizzy

International Scrapped?

LONDON (AP) — The English Football Association has proposed scrapping the traditional British international soccer championship next season in order to compete in the European Cup of Nations.

The idea has upset Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland. Their games with England have been highlights of British soccer for generations.

The European Cup of Nations is being reorganized and will involve more games. The EFA said England will not be able to fit in the additional program unless it sacrifices the home internationals.

More Kudos For Koufax

NEW YORK (AP) — Sandy Koufax, Los Angeles Dodgers' left-handed pitcher, was named Sportsman of the Year for 1965 by Sports Illustrated Tuesday.

Koufax previously won the Cy Young Award as the major leagues' outstanding pitcher last season. He won 26 games, lost eight and captured the National League's earned-run title for the fourth consecutive year.

Clay Arrested in Traffic Fracas

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavy-orderly conduct when, following weight boxing champion Cassius X traffic arrest Tuesday, he Clay was charged with dis-so he could "use the government," the police officer said. Ironically, Clay was named fighter of the year by American boxing writers Tuesday.

Clay and three other men were stopped while riding in a car that had no licence plates or city vehicle sticker.

A policeman said Clay became belligerent and arrogant when he was questioned. Officers said they stopped the car, driven by Johnny Cage, 47, Chicago, after they saw it circling a block and noticed it had no state licence plates or city sticker.

They said Cage was driving with a revoked driver's licence and said he had not had time to buy a licence or sticker.

Clay and another occupant of the car, Omar Bey, were charged with disorderly conduct and posted $25 bond.

A fourth man in the car, who was not identified, was released. Cage was charged with driving with a revoked licence, and driving without a state licence and city vehicle sticker.

New Engine Rules For Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The annual 500-mile Memorial Day auto race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway will be opened next May to medium-size American stock car engines, possibly making them competitive to expensive special racing engines.

Speedway president Anton Hulman said Friday, after conferring with U.S. Auto Club officials, that new rules will include "American stock production block design, single non-overhead camshaft, removable head engines" of not more than 305.1 cubic inches. The limit will be 303.4 cubic inches if supercharged.

Chevrolet engines in the 308 class have competed successfully on the USAC spring circuit but have been barred from the 500 by a limit of 256 cubic inches.

The rule change is being made on an experimental basis for one year.

Another rule change will reduce the fuel supply permitted in each car from 400 to 230 gallons.

Three Heats To Amor

Vern Amor won all three heats of the feature 250 and open class race of Victoria Motorcycle Club's meet Sunday at Goldstream.

Amor lapped everyone but Tom Smith in the first two heats, and lapped the field in the third. Smith finished second and Wes Mobart third.

Gordie Blow won the 90 class race and Stan Amor the 200 class.

Sox Post To Stanky

CHICAGO (AP) — Eddie Stanky, asserting "I run my ball club 24 hours a day, 12 months a year," signed a three-year contract to manage Chicago White Sox Tuesday.

Stanky last ran a ball club St. Louis Cardinals, in 1955.

Almost as colorful and controversial as his former boss Leo Durocher, new Chicago Cub manager, Stanky's selection as successor to Al Lopez, who resigned, came as a complete surprise. His salary was guessed at $40,000 a year.

Lopez retired Nov. 4 to become vice-president and Sox consultant. Stanky, 48, director player personnel of New York Mets, never even was hinted as a Sox managerial candidate.

The fact Stanky, who directed the Cardinals to third-place finish

European Luxury Sedan Corners Like Sports Car

Luxury on display—the Mercedes Benz 600

By BOB FETHICK

What has the distinguished look and elegance of a European VIP sedan, corners like a sports car, has a horn that sounds like a B.C. Ferry, and costs $23,000, basic.

The Mercedes Benz 600, that's what.

It seems contradictory to be sitting surrounded by stately appointments while whirling around a corner in sports car fashion, but that's what I did yesterday in the silent 600.

To begin with, the car doesn't really drive. It sort of glides with the driver in it. Once the power-assisted door closes with the pressure of a little finger the car surrounds the driver in a way that can best be described as exciting.

The V-8, overhead-camshaft, fuel-injection limousine arrived in Victoria at David Motors, 1101 Yates, Monday, completing a cross-Canada demonstration trip. It will be on demonstration today.

THREE ORDERED

So far three have been ordered, two in Vancouver and one on Vancouver Island.

With all its lively performance it looks like a car built for carrying chiefs of state, and to back this up Mercedes officials report the model is owned by many of these including Marshal Tito, Mao Tse-tung and Pope Paul.

SLIM POSSIBILITY

The possibility of it cutting deeply into the domestic market is slim with its $23,000 price tag.

It might be called the car that won't let you forget because of the unique locking system. To lock the car the lock needs be applied to only one door and the other three doors, the trunk lid, the fuel tank filler cap and the front ventilator shut lock electronically.

A flick of a switch opens or closes the trunk. Another switch opens and closes windows noiselessly. With a flick of the finger the seats can be raised, lowered, moved forward or backward and the gear of the seat can be lowered to horizontal. Rear seats are similarly adjustable.

The unique key uses dots punched in its shaft to open the car door rather than the familiar teeth. This makes the car a tough proposition for thieves.

INSTRUMENTS

Instruments include a rev. counter, speedometer, oil, fuel and thermometer gauges, and an outside temperature thermometer which warns the driver through its reading when to expect black ice on the road surfaces.

There are some advanced safety features—like a divided steering column that can collapse in case of accident, and recessed interior fittings.

BRAKE RELEASE

And Mercedes has even found a way to prevent the absent-minded motorist from taking off with his parking brake on—it releases automatically when the transmission is on drive.

The car can be raised two inches for travel on rough roads and has adjustable shock absorbers which work with the touch of a button. Springs are compressed air, and all four wheels are independently suspended.

Ballet Cancels Tour of U.S.

TORONTO (CP)—A spokesman for the National Ballet of Canada said its 1966 tour of the United States and Mexico is off because it had not been possible to arrange adequate financial guarantees. "Jumps between cities were much too long," the spokesman, George MacPherson, said.

Judy's 'Baby' to Be Born On Time—Jan. 1

By GARFIELD SPETZ
OTTAWA (UPI) — The Canada Pension Plan, once described by Health Minister Judy LaMarsh as "my baby," will be "born" into an integral part of the Canadian way of life, it may take some time to learn the extent of the growing pains. Although officials are hopeful through which it will go, it will be a robust and healthy child, and mature in 10 years, their best in a feverish round of concentration on administration. New Year's Day — nine Canadian way of life, it may take some time to learn the extent of the growing pains.

the birth and early childhood will be as painless as possible. The contributory wage-related plan will be compulsory for all Canadians between the ages of 18-65 who earn more than $600 a year or more than $300 if self-employed. It will also be available to persons 65-70 earning more than the salary minimums.

BIG IMPACT

First contributions from employers and employees will be made next month and the initial benefits will be paid one year later.

About 6,500,000 Canadians — almost one-third of the country's population — will come under the plan at the start and its very magnitude means it will have considerable impact.

There are going to be problems but officials in the department of revenue, which will handle the collections, have been doing their best to minimize them.

One of the trouble spots they have been concentrating on in recent months concerns employer-employee contributions.

DEDUCTIONS

Beginning the first week in January, employers will have to deduct pension contributions from employee pay cheques.

If a person is paid by the week, his deductions are made on a weekly basis. If he is paid by the month, his deductions are made each month.

No matter how they are taken off, deductions will be 1.8 per cent of yearly earnings between $600-$5,000.

Employers must watch the deduction of each employee to bring the total pension contribution to 3.6 per cent of the earnings.

Self-employed persons making more than the yearly $300 will pay the entire 3.6 per cent on earnings between $600-$5,000.

About 350 revenue department officials have been travelling around the country during the last three months explaining the plan and the method of deductions to Canada's 400,000 employers.

BUSINESSMEN TOLD

A spokesman said Monday the task should be completed by the end of January. Employers will have until next Feb. 15, to submit their January contributions to the taxation division of the department of revenue.

He said department officials have been stressing to businessmen both the advisability and their obligation to make the deductions from their employees' pay cheques and to keep them up to date.

Should an employer fail to make the proper deductions, he will have to pay the amount of under-contribution, plus a penalty of 10 per cent on that amount, plus 10 per cent interest.

If an employee notices that wrong deductions have been made, he has two alternatives. First is to notify his employer. The second is to inform the taxation department before April 30, or any year that the employer.

For example, a worker will have until April 30, 1967, to have any adjustments made for omission. But the employee suffers. We've got an obligation, and a job to do and we're going to do big stick or anything like that, it.

Covered-Wagon Feat

Tired Pair Rests After Long Trek

By DON McLEOD

HALIFAX (CPI)—Two boarded men in cowboy clothes unhitched their covered wagon Tuesday, bedded down their horses and headed for a motel room to sleep.

Cecil Rivers of Calgary and Bill Stiff of Fort William, Ont., had just completed a 3,700-mile trip from Calgary that began April 5 in a Prairie schooner.

En route here, a dog making the trip produced eight pups. Rivers' original travelling companion was replaced at Fort William by Stiff.

"I must say I'm glad to see this day arrive, although it's been an enjoyable trip," said Rivers, 34, who had been a guidance counselor at a beauty college in Calgary.

Stiff, 36, was a transport truck driver in Fort William. Rivers is married with three sons. Stiff is single.

Rivers said he began the trip with $2.65. He said souvenirs he sold and the free board and lodgings from the public kept the cost to a minimum.

Rivers estimated he has taken 65 to 70 rolls of eight and 16-millimeter film and 35 millimeter slides, on the way.

The trip was completed about a month behind schedule, eight months and nine days after it started.

"There's no better way to see Canada. We've seen things even local residents didn't see," said Rivers.

Rivers said they "left Calgary in a rainstorm... and we ended our trip in a rainstorm." The two encountered snow almost every day during the first and last months of the trip, with the most serious storm in Quebec.

Stiff said he was "glad to see this day arrive, although it's been an enjoyable trip."

'Tis the Season of Flu Bugs

OTTAWA (CPI)—'Tis the season to be jolly. It's also the season for fevers, aches, stomach upsets and all the other symptoms of influenza.

While it may be small comfort to those who have come down with the recurring disease, health authorities say all indications point to no more flu of time before the versatile flu virus changes this bright picture. It seems to run in 10-year cycles.

There certainly is no evidence available to the federal health department of a flu outbreak on the scale of the 1957 epidemic which affected thousands and disrupted schools and businesses.

But it may only be a matter of time before the versatile flu virus changes this bright picture. It seems to run in 10-year cycles.

If the flu bug holds true to form another variety should be ready to strike in 1967, when Canadians are marking the centennial of Confederation. However, health authorities protection.

Victim's Mother

I'll Kill You—Beast!

HYDE, England (UPI) — The mother of a murdered 10-year-old girl faced the young couple accused of the crime Tuesday and screamed "I'll kill you, I'll kill you."

Mrs. Gertrude Downey broke down in the witness box when she was questioned at a preliminary hearing into the murder of her 10-year-old daughter, Lesley Ann Downey, John Kilbride, 22, and Edward Evans, 17.

Ian Brady, 23, is charged with all three murders.

COMPLICITY
His 23-year-old girl friend, Myra Hindley, is accused of killing Evans and Downey and complicity in the third slaying.

The hearing is to determine whether evidence justifies putting Brady and Miss Hindley on trial for murder.

The body of Lesley Ann was recently found by police buried on the lonely moors near here a year after the girl disappeared from her home.

The body of the other youngster was found nearby.

The hatched Evans corpse was found by police in the house where Brady and Miss Hindley were living.

LESLEY'S VOICE
A tape recording was also found, said to be that of the voice of Lesley.

Mrs. Downey took the stand and, to the accompaniment of sobs, told how she listened to the tape recording. Asked the prosecuting attorney:

"Did you hear the voices of a man, a woman and a little girl?"

SHOUTED THREAT
"Yes," Mrs. Downey replied. "Did you recognize the voice of the little girl?"

"Yes."
"Whose was it?"
"Lesley Ann."

THE BEAST
Then, staring particularly at Miss Hindley, Mrs. Downey shouted her threat to "kill you."

"She sits there staring at me and she took a baby's life, the beast," she said.

WENT TO FAIR
Sobbing uncontrollably, she was helped from the witness box and given a glass of water.

When she resumed the stand, she told how Lesley set out from home on the day of her death to go to a local fair 200 yards away. "She had a sence," (about seven cents), Mrs. Downey said.

TOLD POLICE
She said she searched the fair and the streets near her house when Lesley did not return. Then she went to the police.

Mrs. Downey identified a photograph of her daughter and described articles of clothing Lesley wore when she disappeared. She told of identifying Lesley's body.

Don't be a cough disturber

Are you one of those who cough and disturb your friends and family, causing them restless nights, as well as yourself. If you are suffering from a cough due to colds or bronchitis, then you owe it to everyone around you to enjoy that wonderful fast relief from Buckley's Mixture today. Buckley's Mixture is the completely different cough remedy known for its fast action. That is why over 50 million bottles have been sold and Buckley's fame has now spread to some twenty countries. Look you that this great cough remedy is sold everywhere in Canada, even in the Arctic where lives depend on fast fast cough relief.

Over 50 million bottles of Buckley's Mixture have been sold around the world.

Strong Growth Trend Maintained

"This has been a challenging year for the Canadian banking system", said William M. Currie, President, addressing the 99th Annual Meeting of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

This has been another good year for the Canadian economy. The strong growth trend to which we returned in 1961 has been maintained despite some initial concern as to its continuation for another year, and every region of the country has participated in full measure.

Momentum within the economy itself has had a great deal to do with this excellent performance as indicated by the sharp increase in capital investment, the continuing rise in output of the manufacturing industries and the high level of retail sales. We have had a bumper crop of wheat and markets are assured for virtually the entire harvest of about 700 million bushels. Of importance also has been the fact that economic conditions in our principal markets abroad turned out to be more favourable than had been anticipated so that demand for our exports continued to be strong. The United States enjoyed another impressive increase in output; Britain with international help weathered two serious financial crises, and growth rates picked up in most countries of continental Europe and in Japan.

Developments within Canada

On the domestic scene, our Gross National Product for the year as a whole is expected to exceed $51 billion. This would represent an increase over last year of some nine per cent in terms of current dollars and six per cent in terms of volume. Employment has continued to rise strongly, allowing for the usual seasonal fluctuations; total employment in October was over the seven million mark, the year-over increase being approximately 230,000. In October the margin of unemployment was estimated at 2.4 per cent of the labour force.

The personal sector of the economy which accounts for roughly two-thirds of the Gross National Product has been buoyant throughout the year. Rising personal income and the continuing increase in the use of consumer credit have been reflected in the demand for goods and services. Notably, sales of new automobiles in 1965 are expected to reach about 700,000 units, a striking advance from the 440,000 units sold in 1961.

The new wave of accelerated capital investment continues. In 1965, business investment in machinery and equipment and non-residential construction within the range of $7.5 billion will be 15 to 20 per cent higher than in 1964 and plans already announced suggest there may be a further increase next year. The expansion in capacity financed by this investment covers a broad range of activity from the resource-based industries to many types of secondary manufacturing and some of the plants will produce products which are either new in Canada or were produced previously on a limited scale. The 1965 estimate for total outlays of $2.8 billion in social capital projects also represents a sharp increase, over 20 per cent higher than last year. The investment in housing, amounting to approximately $2.3 billion, will be nearly 15 per cent above last year although the number of starts will show only a modest increase over the 1964 record of 166,000 starts.

Capital investment on this scale creates strong demands for resources. The flow of material and equipment for the programme has been reasonably well maintained but there are warnings which suggest that shortages of engineering skills and skilled labour, in particular, may prevent the completion of the full programme planned for this year.

Turning to the government sector, both current and capital expenditures continue to increase with total outlays for goods and services by the three levels of government estimated to exceed $9 billion this year. Tax revenues and other forms of government collections are considerably higher because of the high level of economic activity. At the federal level, the administrative budget should be close to balance and in fact may show a small surplus.

International Trade

Looking abroad, our exports of merchandise, exclusive of wheat, were up about seven per cent through the first nine months of the year but the contraction in wheat shipments which followed completion of the deliveries to Russia under the 1963-1964 contract brought the overall increase in exports down to about 1.5 per cent. However, following the latest contracts with Russia and China, shipments of wheat are again on the advance and total merchandise exports for 1965 are expected to show an increase of about five per cent over the 1964 total of $8.3 billion. It is encouraging to see the continuing penetration of Canadian manufactured goods into foreign markets but this trend will have to be maintained in the year to come if the Canadian economy is to continue to support a high level of imports.

The rate at which we import persists as one of our most difficult and fundamental economic problems. This year our imports have risen at a faster rate than our exports with imports of merchandise for the first nine months of the year up 12 per cent over the corresponding period in 1964. The use of major increases in imports runs all the way from fabricated materials, machinery and equipment to a broad range of consumer goods, reflecting the acceleration in the pace of activity in manufacturing, the rise in capital investment and the high level of consumer demand. Of special note is the expansion in trade in automobiles and parts between Canada and the United States resulting from the recent agreement on conditional free trade in motor vehicles and original equipment parts. Comparing the first six months of this year with the same period in 1964, we find that our exports of automotive products to the United States increased from $37 million to $76 million while our imports of the same categories of goods from the United States increased from $387 million to $470 million. At the same time, our exports of automotive products to overseas countries increased by $45 million.

Balance of Payments

During this year a good deal of attention has been focused on the steps taken to bring about a sustained reduction in the overall deficit in the balance of payments of the United States. In February the Interest Equalization Tax, applicable since July 1963 to most transactions in longer-term foreign securities by United States citizens, was extended to apply to commercial bank loans, with maturities of one year or more, advanced to foreign borrowers in developed countries. In addition, all commercial banks doing business in the United States were requested to co-operate in a voluntary programme to cut back their lending abroad and business corporations were enlisted in a national campaign to limit their direct foreign investments, their deposits in foreign banks and their holdings of other foreign financial assets. These measures, designed primarily as a means of limiting the mounting outflow of dollars to Western Europe, have been reasonably effective in the short run but it is too soon yet to evaluate their longer-run effects on domestic and foreign business. Because of the increasingly integrated world environment in which we live, there have also been repercussions in countries outside Western Europe.

Canada has been recognized as meriting special consideration in the application of the United States balance of payments measures because the capital markets of the two countries are so closely interconnected and because exports of United States capital to Canada are normally required to finance a substantial proportion of the annual Canadian current account deficit with the United States. For this reason, the Interest Equalization Tax has not been applied so far to new issues of Canadian securities. In return for this exemption, it was understood between the two countries that our official holdings of gold and United States dollars would not be permitted to rise appreciably above their July 1963 level while the Interest Equalization Tax remained in effect. However, any undertaking to maintain a ceiling on official reserves has the effect of tying the Canadian interest rate structure more closely to that of the United States, thus restricting to some extent the flexibility of Canadian monetary policy. Otherwise we would probably have seen a somewhat stronger rise in interest rates before the 6th December increases in the United States Federal Reserve discount rate and the Canadian Bank Rate. This would have been rather more characteristic of a period of high activity when pressures on capacity, materials and labour are increasing within the economy and the deficit in the current account of our balance of payments is higher.

It is clear from an analysis of the full range of transactions between Canada and the United States that Canada has made a substantial contribution to the improvement in the United States balance of payments position. Traditionally, the value of Canadian imports of goods and services from the United States has exceeded the value of Canadian exports to that country and in recent years the margin in favour of the United States has increased. In 1963 total current payments by Canada to the United States for merchandise imports and all other current account payments amounted to over $6.5 billion. This exceeded the value of current receipts from the United States by $1.2 billion. The margin in favour of the United States increased in 1964 to over $1.6 billion and there has been a further increase in 1965. Trade with Canada in goods and services has thus been an important factor in increasing the surplus in the current account of the United States balance of payments and reducing that country's overall deficit.

Stated in the simplest terms, the United States dollars required by Canada to cover our current account deficit with the United States have come from two main sources: the surplus earned in our current transactions with other countries and substantial net inflows of short-term and long-term capital from the United States. This capital is either invested directly by United States citizens and corporations in Canada or borrowed by Canadians in United States financial markets. In 1965 the intake of long-term capital from the United States continued without interruption from the proceeds of new security issues marketed in the United States and from direct investment, there being no official directives or restrictions pertaining to the outflow in 1965 of such capital from the United States to Canada. The situation respecting the supply of short-term capital, however, has undergone a marked change since February when United States citizens and corporations, in response to the President's measures to improve the United States balance of payments, began to draw down United States dollar balances carried in the Canadian chartered banks and to realize on funds invested in the Canadian short-term money market. In the result, the net outflow of short-term capital from Canada to the United States during the first half of 1965 amounted to $339 million, largely offsetting the net inflow of long-term capital from the United States which amounted to $367 million during the same period.

It was therefore necessary to finance a very large part of Canada's current account deficit with the United States, which amounted to over $1 billion during the first half of this year, by employing substantial and unusual net inflows of short-term capital from overseas countries. Some $715 million in United States dollars were obtained in this way.

Operations of the Chartered Banks

This movement of short-term funds to meet obligations with the United States was accomplished primarily through the foreign currency operations of the Canadian chartered banks. A substantial volume of United States funds became available through the banking system to help meet the current account deficit with the United States and to finance the sharp reduction in the deposits of United States residents in Canadian banks. In the latter connection, it is significant that there has been very little net liquidation of assets held by the Canadian banks in the United States in order to meet the withdrawal of these deposits. Otherwise, the improvement in the United States balance of payments from this source would have been illusory.

This has been a challenging year for the Canadian banking system at home. Requirements for credit to finance the high level of business activity have shown steady increases while at the same time the supply of short-term funds normally available in the United States has been curtailed. In addition, the understanding with the United States as to the ceiling on Canada's official reserves has imposed certain limitations on the use of interest rates in situations calling for restraint.

In part the demand for funds to finance the higher level of consumer expenditures and capital investment has been met from the stronger flow of personal income and from Canadian corporate earnings. There has also been a comparatively substantial increase in the Canadian money supply amounting to about 13 per cent over the year. The volume of credit outstanding is considerably higher than a year ago, and credit facilities generally are under more pressure. At the end of October the general loans of the Canadian chartered banks were up about 17 per cent and exceeded $9.5 billion while the more liquid assets of the banks remained at about the same level as they were a year ago. Thus, for the banking system as a whole, the ratio of more liquid assets to total Canadian dollar deposit liabilities has declined. In these terms, the liquidity ratio of the chartered banks was about 30.5 per cent at the end of October this year compared with 33 per cent a year earlier.

Outlook for Next Year

As we approach 1966 the favourable aspects of 1965 are still clearly in evidence on every hand. The rise in output has been accomplished in an orderly way and the benefits are well spread out across the country. There are, however, signs of increasing pressures which are chiefly associated with the extent of this comparatively long period of prosperity. These pressures are showing up in higher prices for services, shortages of skilled manpower, lengthening delivery dates for certain types of materials and equipment, and tightness in the money market. Costs of production are creeping up, with labour costs per unit of output running about three per cent higher than a year ago. While the outlook remains encouraging, we shall be well advised to give heed to the mounting pressures on costs and prices if we are to retain the advantages gained in four consecutive years of impressive growth.

L. G. Greenwood, Chief General Manager, reviewed the balance sheet:

During the fiscal year ended October 31, 1965, the Bank's total assets passed the $6,000,000,000 mark, reaching a new peak of $6,206,000,000. This represented an increase of $705,000,000, or 12.8%, over the total as at the preceding year-end. The liquid position of the Bank remains strong. Quick assets at the year-end totalled $2,722,000,000, an increase of $162,000,000 during the fiscal year, and were equal to 44% of the Bank's total liabilities to the public.

CANADIAN IMPERIAL BANK OF COMMERCE

Over 1300 branches to serve you

The balance of the increase in total assets was centred chiefly in loans, which rose by $550,000,000 from $2,400,000,000 to $2,950,000,000. This increase of 23% in total loans was distributed through practically all categories of borrowers, both large and small, and reflected the active pace of the economy throughout the year.

Bank Premises at $73,000,000 showed a modest increase after depreciation. During the year there was a net increase of 41 banking offices, including 7 new offices outside Canada. At the year-end there were 1,375 offices in all, of which 40 were located in countries other than Canada.

Total deposits rose by $667,000,000 to $5,637,000,000, an increase of 13.4%. Of this increase, $175,000,000 occurred in personal savings deposits and there was also a gratifying increase in the numbers of savings bank depositors. In the category of Other Deposits, which includes other Canadian deposits payable after notice, Canadian demand deposits and other deposits in foreign currencies, an increase of $193,000,000 was recorded. Deposits by other banks, by the Government of Canada and by Canadian Provincial Governments rose by a total of $298,000,000.

Rest Account increased by $35,000,000 over the preceding year-end and now stands at $240,000,000. Further reference to this increase will be made later in this report.

Turning now to the Statement of Revenue, Expenses and Undivided Profits, it will be observed that this year the Statement has been drawn up to show in some detail the principal categories of earnings and expenses.

Total revenue was $287,706,839, an increase of over $32,000,000, or 12.6%. From the breakdown of revenues shown on this statement, it will be seen that income from loans accounted for the largest proportion of this increase and this, of course, reflected the substantial rise in the total advances during the past year. As noted at the foot of the Statement of Revenue, Expenses and Undivided Profits, the amounts of income from loans and securities are stated after making transfers to inner reserves, that is, provisions for bad debts and/or other losses, out of which full provision has been made for diminution in value of loans and investments.

Total expenses were $241,802,981, an increase of $29,000,000, or 13.6%. Of this increase, approximately $21,000,000 was accounted for by higher interest costs reflecting both the substantial increase in total deposits during the past year and also the upward trend in rates of interest on certain categories of deposits. A further $5,300,000 of the increase was in salaries, pension fund and other personnel benefits.

Property Expenses and Other Operating Expenses increased by approximately $1,400,000 and $1,000,000 respectively. Balance of Revenue totalled $45,900,000 and after deduction of income taxes in the amount of $22,600,000, there remained a balance of profits for the year of $23,303,858, an increase of $1,901,256 over 1964. Earnings per share were $3.34 as compared with $3.07 for the previous year.

Dividends paid were at the rate of $2.45 per share as compared with $2.25 in 1964 and dividend payments totalled $17,071,600, an increase of $1,393,600 over last year.

After deduction of dividends paid there remained an amount to be carried forward of $6,232,258 to which has been added $3,068,867 being the balance of Undivided Profits at the beginning of the year, and $21,000,000 transferred from inner reserves. This latter sum arises mainly from gains on the investment over a period of years of shareholders' funds in the shares of other companies and does not derive from normal banking earnings; hence it should be regarded as non-recurrent.

The sum of $35,000,000 has been transferred to Rest Account leaving a balance of Undivided Profits at the end of the year of $2,321,125.

The Statement of Rest Account shows a balance at the end of the year of $240,000,000.

This completes the review of the Bank's 99th Annual Statement. It remains to be said, however, that the progress reported was made possible only by the combined efforts of all the men and women who are our personnel and who, at every level, have demonstrated qualities of ability, devotion to duty and pride in the institution which augur well for the future. To these people General Management extends congratulations on their accomplishments during the past year and best wishes in their efforts to achieve high goals in the year that lies ahead.

He Lifted Men's Eyes

As Jesus began his ministry, at 30 years of age, the nation of Palestine was in dire circumstances, having become spiritually, morally and physically impoverished.

The Jews were in bondage to pagan Rome. The cruel and crafty Herod family ruled much of the land. The Mosaic law of the church had been perverted by a corrupt priestly class. The temple of the Lord had become a den of thieves.

Poverty, disease and social evils plagued the people. Each man's hand was against his brother in the daily fight for survival. Women and children especially lived in degradation.

The cities reeked of filth and the countryside was infested with robbers. The air was pierced with the whining chant of beggars and with the hideous cries of those possessed of devils.

From birth to death, life was an intense and never-ending struggle, like that of a man floundering in a bog of quicksand, desperately grasping for something to cling to as he sinks in despair.

And then into this squalid society came the greatest mortal who ever walked upon the earth: Jesus the Christ, the Lord, the Creator, the Saviour and Redeemer of the world.

Among all the countries of the globe, and all the billions of people who ever dwelt upon it, none other were ever privileged to have such a personage born in their midst and dwell with them.

For 33 years were they blessed with his presence. For three years He moved daily

The Miracles of Christmas

by John J. Stewart

among them, walking and talking with them—a divine ray of light in the midst of darkness; a shaft of hope for those groping in the quagmire; an exemplar of truth and justice and mercy. He opened the eyes of the blind, unstopped the ears of the deaf, loosened the tongues of the dumb, healed the sick, made the lame to walk, cast out devils, restored the dead to life, comforted those who mourned.

But Jesus performed a miracle even greater than any of these: through his sublime teachings and perfect example He performed the miracle of transforming men's lives.

Unto those who had eyes to see and ears to hear, the Master gave the priceless gift of a new and an infinitely higher concept of life. He lifted their vision from the dust of the ground to the blue of the sky, and extended that vision into eternity.

His precepts sparked the divine in each man, challenging him to live as an immortal rather than as a mere mortal being.

"If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me . . . For what shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?"

Into a dismal and dreary world Jesus brought the miracle of the spirit of Christmas, the hope of mankind. Next — The Miracle in Samaria.

Ex-RCMP Chief Named Top Scout

OTTAWA (CP)—L. H. Nicholson, once Canada's top Mountie, has been named international commissioner of the Boy Scouts of Canada. It was announced Tuesday.

He succeeds Earle T. Moore of Montreal who has held the office since October, 1953.

POLITICAL DISPUTE

Soldierly Leonard Hansen Nicholson made RCMP history in 1959 when he resigned as commissioner of the force in a policy dispute with then Justice Minister Fulton.

At present he is head of the protection and investigation service of the Bank of Nova Scotia. He has been deputy chief scout for Canada for the last six years.

ROSE THROUGH RANKS

A New Brunswick farm boy, he rose through the ranks of the RCMP to occupy its top post.

Born in King's County, New Brunswick, he joined the force in 1923, later serving with the New Brunswick and Nova Scotia provincial police forces before those provinces were policed by the RCMP under contract.

After Murders

Teen-Ager Ordered To Hospital

A teen-ager charged with the slaying of five members of a Vancouver family was ordered Tuesday to be transferred from Vancouver city lockup to Riverview Hospital at Essondale.

An order-in-council said satisfactory evidence has been submitted that the boy is mentally ill. He is charged with "committing a delinquency, to wit, five counts of capital murder."

UNTIL RECOVERY

The provincial cabinet order said the boy is to be kept in Riverview until full or complete recovery is certified to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, or until further order.

Victims of the double-bitted slaying as they slept in their home early on the morning of Dec. 10 were Osborne H. Kosberg and his wife, Dorothy, and three of their children, Barry, 15, Gayle, 11, and Vincent, 2.

TREATED FOR WOUNDS

Another daughter, Marianne, 13, was treated in hospital for head wounds, while a baby, six-month-old Osborne, escaped injury.

One veteran police officer, Superintendent James Munie, described the scene inside the house as the worst crime of violence he had ever seen.

T-Bar Lifts Get Hand Up

Approval was given Tuesday for construction of two T-bar ski lifts on the B.C. mainland. A provincial cabinet order-in-council granted approval for Garibaldi Lifts Limited to build a T-bar lift on Whistler Mountain near Garibaldi Park.

Also approved by the cabinet was an application of Silver Star Sports Limited to build an additional T-bar lift on Silver Star Mountain near Vernon.

NBC Names New Head

NEW YORK (AP)—Appointment of Robert E. Kintner as chairman of the board of the National Broadcasting Company was announced here. Kintner, president of NBC since 1958, will take over Jan. 1, succeeding Robert W. Sarnoff. Sarnoff will move to the presidency of the Radio Corp. of America, NBC's parent organization, in a major executive realignment. Walter D. Scott, 50, new president of NBC's television network, becomes president of NBC and will serve as the company's chief executive officer.

Sweden's Bibi Goes Western

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's a long distance from the explicit dramas of Sweden to an American western. Bibi Andersson has made the transition with what appears to be highly satisfactory results.

Bibi is the striking blonde who achieved fame as leading lady in Ingmar Bergman films, some of which have run afoul of American censors. Producer-her work and cast her with James Garner and Sidney Poitier in Duel at Diablo, which was entirely on location near Kumb, Utah.

Westerns have progressed beyond the era when the cowboy star kissed only his horse.

"Four men try to tear my clothes off in one scene," reported Bibi. "But of course this is a western, and the hero rescues me before they can succeed."

I asked if a European version was filmed, in which the hero arrived late. No, she said, expressing interest in the practice of some American producers to franker or nuder versions for the overseas trade.

"We do the same thing in Sweden," she said. "For the version here, the girl wears pants and a bra."

BOTH WAYS

Such are the divergent cultures. Bibi Andersson seems capable of playing both sides of the ocean. Her English is flawless. She admitted enjoying the location, grunting though it may have seemed.

"For the first eight weeks the sun shone," she said. "Since I am from Sweden, that's all I needed to keep me happy. Later it rained, and I was not so happy. But I managed to keep my spirits up."

HOT LIGHTS

Even on a rugged location, filming in the United States is easier than in Sweden, she said. "In Sweden we have no standing," she commented. "The actors have to stand under the hot lights until the scene is ready, and that is very tiring."

IDEA SELLS WELL

A total of 50 Anglo-French Concordes, supersonic airliners of which the prototype has not yet been built, have been sold.

Called "Sulvez la Platte" (Follow the Trail) the half hour show will have its grande premiere Jan. 7 and run for 25 weeks.

"We want to attract the biggest audience we can," Nears said. "We thought that this kind of story would give extra appeal."

"The program is for adult viewers so we have mixed up the instructions in French with a good thriller story. It's larger than life with plenty of humor in it."

Nears said in each episode there would be petite breaks between scenes in which the four members of the cast would explain in English some of the phrases Française.

Vive la Television And Femmes Fatale

LONDON (UPI) — Le British Broadcasting Corp. presents a show of television sur le crime internationale similar to L'Homme from Uncle and Le Tres Chlo James Bond-en Française.

Anyone with a basic knowledge of French will be able to comprehend the serial, according to producer Colin Nears.

The idea is to teach Britons some French as they watch les gallantes rescue curvaceous femmes fatales from murde, l'espionage and crime de passion.

Actress Trio Invades Prison Stage

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three in the otherwise all-male, all-convict cast were three actresses from the outside.

And, according to penal law against mingling of the sexes, they shouldn't have been.

The occasion was the staging Monday night by the Stony Mountain penitentiary of Arsenic and Old Lace, a comedy about two potty old maid poisoners.

Warden Fred Harris said he didn't know until the curtain went up that the actresses, coaching volunteers from the Manitoba Drama League, would be going on stage.

He added that no action would be taken over the rules' infraction.

A drama league spokesman said the prison drama club had decided at a recent meeting that the female rules were too difficult for the men to handle.

Nematodes Spotted Again

By JIM BRAHAN

A new infestation of golden nematodes has been discovered in the Wilkinson Road area, federal plant protection officer Neville Mayers said Tuesday.

The microscopic worms were found in a backyard garden during a routine soil sampling survey of the area.

"It is a light infestation," the federal officer said. "It is located within the known infested area."

QUARANTINED
A potato field belonging to the Wilkinson Road Jail was quarantined last summer because of the nematode.

The plant protection officers are surveying all properties which are under cultivation, or have been cultivated at one time.

SUBDIVIDED
The land where the new infestation has been found was formerly part of a cultivated acreage until it was subdivided, Mr. Mayers said.

He also said the second round of soil sampling on Saanich Peninsula is about two-thirds complete.

There are a few bright spots appearing in the war against the nematode.

Seed potatoes from the mainland can now be shipped to the U.S. provided they are under certificate from the plant protection office, Mr. Mayers said.

TO ISLAND POINTS
Seed potatoes grown on Vancouver Island can be shipped only to island points.

"No potatoes can be shipped off the Island—period," he said.

UNDER CERTIFICATE
Nurseries in the quarantine area can ship bare-rooted stock to the U.S. providing they are under certificate, but no plants with soil can be moved out of the area, he said.

The quarantine for the southern tip of Vancouver Island has been in effect since last summer.

NOTHING NEW
He said he had no new information on government compensation for growers hit by the nematode.

"Any news on compensation will have to come from Ottawa," he said.

Elks Will Collect Surplus Food Gifts

Mrs. E. E. Harper is collecting food for the Surplus Food Stall which gives needed sustenance to persons on welfare. It will be open at 11 a.m. Saturday at 732-A Cormorant. A phone call to Mrs. Harper at 638-8177 will bring the Elks around to pick up the food. An incorrect number was given in Tuesday's Colonist. This is the correct one.

Matthew Dodds shovels water in his driveway at 1460 Grant

Belmont, Begbie, Grant

Water Main Torrent Floods Many Cellars

It was the deluge. A 20-inch water main burst at Belmont and Begbie Tuesday night pouring thousands of gallons of water down Begbie, Grant and Belmont.

"It's a doozy," said a fireman.

Water poured over the five-way intersection, smashed against parked cars, and rebounded into nearby houses.

Houses a block away from the break had basements flooded.

LOOKED LIKE LARK

It looked like a lark at first. Pyjama-clad residents pulled on rubber boots and stood on the curbs, laughing at the cars struggling up Grant.

Further down the streets residents began to hear the trickle of water, as they watched the late movies.

WILD STREAM

A deep wild stream of water roared down Grant along the north curb, hit parked cars and sprayed and ran down drive ways to basements.

Meanwhile, on Belmont, the waters had begun to undercut and cave in sections of pavement.

City police set up detour signs to keep motorists from dangerous sections of pavement, fire department officers stood by, and the city water works night crew tried for more than 1½ hours to shut off the water.

NOT AS LUCKY

"It's really something," said W. E. Shepherd, 1329 Vining.

Mr. Shepherd's home was untouched by the water. He heard of the main break from his sons. Matthew Dodds was not as lucky as Mr. Shepherd.

Mr. Dodds lives at 1460 Grant, and his garage was inundated by rushing water, and his basement received a fair portion, too.

WATER TRICKLING

"I was in my house, when a neighbor telephoned and told me water was trickling into my basement."

Mr. Dodds went out into the cold night air and tried to beat the flood off with his shovel.

At Belmont and Begbie, a smiling youth, dressed in shirt, jacket, boots and pyjama bottoms greeted his friends, on the other side of a stream.

LITTLE SLEEP

There was little sleep for residents last night.

"With the main broken, what are we going to do for water?" someone asked.

Feel Cold?

Last Year It Was Worse

The occasional grumble about the cold weather Monday must have been made by people with short memories. Compared with last year we never had it so good.

While overnight temperatures will drop to around 28 degrees, last year at this time the thermometer hit 10 degrees, there was a snow storm and worst of all a 42-mile-an-hour wind.

Cars were stuck, traffic jams were everywhere and every emergency sanding group was on the move trying to make the streets travelable.

HOPE HELD OUT

Monday night it was cold, but there was no wind and the weather office holds out hope of a let-up late Tuesday or early Wednesday.

Weather system bringing wind and rain is moving down from the Gulf of Alaska and pushing the present front of Arctic air back to the north.

Remembering last year at this time with the wind and the snow and the (br) weather there is much to be thankful for today.

Shops Told:

Force Crooks To Grub

It could save police a lot of trouble if the proprietors of small stores would take a few simple measures against holdup men, Saanich Police Commissioner G. Stanley Eden said Tuesday night.

First, he said, they shouldn't keep cheques in the till, because if they are stolen it's a hard and complicated business getting them re-issued.

And second, storekeepers should keep no more than about $50 in the till, and put the rest in some other safe place — "make the holdup man grub for it," he said.

New Skipper For Mackenzie

New captain of HMCS Mackenzie will be Cmdr. Glen Michael de Rosenroll, 39, of Victoria who will take over Feb. 28.

He succeeds Cmdr. Henry J. Wade, 41, of Vancouver who will take an appointment as assistant-submarine warfare officer at the Supreme Allied Command, Atlantic, in Norfolk, Va. The anti-submarine post was formerly held by Cmdr. de Rosenroll.

PTA Show

The two-act play, The Fabulous Story of Puss in Boots, will be shown at 7:15 p.m. Thursday and Friday by the Craigflower PTA in place of the regular monthly meeting.

TB Veterans' Flag Retired to Chapel

The flag of the Tubercular Veterans Branch 18 of the Royal Canadian Legion was laid up in the chapel of Veterans' Hospital Tuesday.

Rev. Douglas Kendall and Canon T. M. Hughes officiated at the ceremony.

Canon Hughes consecrated the flag just after the First World War at a picnic held at the Experimental Farm in Central Saanich.

Branch 18 has been disbanded because there are so few of the members still living.

One of the few original members of the association E. V. Robley, 637 Avalon, attended the ceremony.

Civil Servants Get Good News

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett announced Tuesday that all of British Columbia's civil servants including deputy ministers will receive salary increases in 1966.

Cabinet ministers, who received a $2,500 salary increase on April 1, 1965, and now receive $17,500 annually plus $6,300 sessional indemnity, will not be given more money next year, he said.

Announcement of the increases was made during a government luncheon at the Empress Hotel for 44 government employees who have completed 25 years of continuous service.

Mr. Bennett did not say how much the pay increases will be, but for the past three years the civil service has received across-the-board pay boosts amounting to five per cent annually.

It means that some 18,500 civil servants in B.C., about 4,000 of them in Greater Victoria, will have more take-home pay in the next fiscal year, which begins April 1, 1966.

Mr. Bennett said 1965 was the greatest year in British Columbia's history, and "I think 1966 is even going to be a better year for the people of our province and for the civil service, too."

The 65-year-old premier, who seemed to be in a nostalgic mood, paid tribute to the Civil Service Commission headed by Dr. H. M. Morrison, and congratulated the employees who had remained with the government for 25 years.

He then commented: "Next year I will celebrate 25 years as an MLA, and I know how difficult it is." He was first elected to the B.C. legislature in 1911.

Dr. Morrison told the civil servants, "You people are the career people who have put in 25 years of your lives . . . the cream of the crop, who are helping build a better province."

Premier Bennett, assisted by Dr. Morrison, presented certificates and personally congratulated each of the long-time employees.

A similar banquet for 74 employees with 25-year records on the mainland will be held in the social suite of the Hotel Vancouver at noon Thursday. Mr.

Bennett will again present certificates.

Among those receiving certificates were A. H. Hall, registrar of companies; W. A. Bruce, chief inspector for the Liquor Control Board; C. R. Margison, assistant deputy minister of labor; Willard Ireland, provincial librarian and archivist; and Dr. G. Clifford Carl, director of the Provincial Museum.

Others were R. M. Baker, Miss Frances Porter, Mrs. Joyce McGowan, Mrs. Alice Wright, W. A. Bruce, R. M. Chandler, C. B. McIntosh, Robert Mason,

G. C. Petticrew, Miss Annie Adamson, M. J. Davis, W. R. D. Hill, Miss Muriel Wright, R. B. Fields, Miss Joan French, A. G. Jordan, W. A. West.

A. H. Bamford, I. T. Cameron, D. M. Carey, H. C. Casillo, Miss Phyllis Christian, G. A. Kenney, W. C. Pendray, J. S. Stokes, E. G. Whiting, B. H. Bennett, J. A. Lonsbury, N. M. F. Pope.

Also, Miss Lillian Conway, S. L. Clarke, N. G. Colvin, William Player, W. D. Carley, Mrs. Margaret Gray, R. D. Higgins, R. A. Stephenson, G. O. Hawkins and G. L. Levy.

Car Hits Tree, Boulders

Newsman Killed, Two Critical In Park Crash

A young Canadian Press newsman was killed and two Victoria Times reporters were critically injured when a car smashed into a tree in Lover's Lane near Cook and Dallas shortly before midnight Tuesday.

Dead is Vernon Lacey, 23, of Moose Jaw, Sask., who has worked in Victoria since Jan. 1 of this year.

In critical condition are Candide Temple, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy H. Temple, 5545 Selwyn, and Robert Donahue, 24 Garden Park Court.

Another Times reporter, Glen Allen, and a Colonist deskman, Ronald Thody, were also passengers in the car but were not taken to hospital.

ROAD ICY

The car, a late-model European sedan, went out of control on entering Lover's Lane, hit three large boulders and two trees before coming to rest well inside the lane.

The road was icy. No other car was involved.

Mr. Lacey went to work for the Moose Jaw Times-Herald in September, 1961, and moved to the North Arthur News-Chronicle the next year.

In 1964 he went to the Prince George Citizen and later that year joined The Canadian Press.

Meeting Change

Esquimalt municipal council will hold its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday, and not Thursday as was announced earlier.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Why don't service men and women get treated better by the airlines? They risk their lives for our country and should be treated like privileged characters. Instead they get kicked around.

Our nephew who is in the Navy came home for a few days. He couldn't make reservations because he was travelling on the military discount. They kept him on standby for 12 hours and he arrived home exhausted. Servicemen and women are the last to board the plane. They can get on only if seats are left over. Furthermore, they can be put off at any stop if a commercial passenger wants to get on. I've seen boys in uniform near tears when they were ordered off a plane half-way home. These poor kids must then wait for a plane with empty seats. Is this fair? — DISGUSTED AUNT.

Dear Aunt: The military discount is an arrangement between the airlines and the government, designed to accommodate the maximum number of service people at the most economical rates.

Servicemen and women who travel at a substantial saving are told in advance that they might get bumped. If they don't want to risk it, they should pay the commercial rates and be assured of a seat.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother died five months ago. Her last wish was that I take my 23-year-old brother into our home.

My husband never got along with Kirk but it was he who said, "Yes, Mother, we will take Kirk. Don't worry."

Kirk agreed to pay us $17 a week for room and board and laundry (he makes $88 a week). He stopped paying after the first two months and we haven't seen a dime since.

Two months ago he took our car without permission. He wrecked it and now we are without a car.

Our two sons are afraid of Kirk. He's awfully mean to them. He wears my husband's clothes and has burned holes in our furniture because of his careless smoking habits.

I could write a book, but what's the use? My husband has been a saint but he's ready to leave if I don't get Kirk out of here. My mother's memory haunts me. After all, we promised. Please tell me what to do. — A WRECK.

Dear Wreck: The Bible says you are your brother's keeper, but it doesn't say you should keep your brother until he burns your house down and destroys your marriage.

You fulfilled your promise to your mother when you took Kirk in. He made the arrangement impossible because of his miserable behavior. Throw the bum out.

Dear Ann Landers: Many people write in to complain about a mother-in-law. My mother-in-law is a peach. It's my father-in-law I can't stand.

This man has never been wrong in his life. He is an authority on everything — knows better than the president of the United States and all his advisers what ought to be done. He reads a lot and gets everything mixed up.

He is always telling me how to run my business although he could never make a success of his own. He inherited a fine company, ran it into the ground, and is now working for his former competitor.

I try to be respectful for my wife's sake, but it's rough. Any suggestions on how to tolerate him? — G-TTT.

Dear G-TTT: Your three best allies are two tin ears and a sense of humor. Keep the lid on for your wife's sake. You'll be glad you did.

For the little girl on your shopping list, whether she's doll-size or a sophisticated four-year-old, a pretty party dress is just the gift to make her eyes sparkle Christmas morning. Girls of all ages love to dress up and these lovely dresses of easy-care batiste of Dacron and cotton can be dunked and dried and back on the littlest angel before you can say "Merry Christmas."

Black-MacIver

California Honeymoon

A honeymoon trip to San Francisco, Calif., followed the recent wedding of Nancy Eileen MacIver and Mr. Kenneth Robert Black in St. Patrick's Church.

Rev. A. E. Leonard officiated at the double-ring ceremony for the daughter of Mrs. Hector MacIver, 1926 Belmont Avenue, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Black, Glasgow, Scotland.

The bride was lovely in a floor-length sheath-style gown in train in white satin embellished with white velvet roses. Her scalloped, shoulder-length veil was held in place by a pearl and lace tiara. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and red roses.

Mr. Robert A. Edgeworth gave his sister-in-law in marriage. Mrs. Edgeworth, as matron of honor for her twin sister, wore a floor-length sheath in turquoise chiffon and lace. She carried a cascade of pink roses and white carnations. Little four-year-old Karen Edgeworth, bride's niece, was flower girl. She wore a pink dress with lace trim and carried pink roses and white carnations.

Mr. George Baldwin of Richmond, B.C., was best man. Ushering were Mr. Ted Lunt and Mr. Don Burns.

A reception followed at the War Amputations Hall in Oak Bay. The newlyweds will make their home in Victoria.

Mrs. Smith President

Mrs. D. Smith was elected president of St. Aidan's United Church Women at a recent meeting.

Mrs. M. Jacura, retiring president, was honored by the presentation of a life membership.

Other officers are Mrs. G. Brown, 1st vice-president; Mrs. G. Fields, 2nd vice-president; Mrs. D. Chabessal, recording secretary; Mrs. T. Dempster, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. Watson, treasurer and Mrs. W. Hunter, assistant treasurer. Conveners appointed were Mrs. A. Burkholder, Mrs. R. Champion, Mrs. T. Galt, Mrs. W. Giles, Mrs. K. Rix, Mrs. G. Brown, Mrs. H. Lyons, Mrs. R. Thexton, Mrs. M. Jacura, Mrs. C. White, Mrs. J. Campbell, Mrs. C. Hayward, Mrs. R. Macallister, Mrs. P. Boorman and Mrs. R. Lambe.

Writing "finis" to a secretarial position at HMC Dockyard, Mrs. Kathleen Irving, 1143-A Munro Street, retires at the end of the month following 13 years of service with the RCN's

Pacific Command Chaplain's office. Although she has made no definite plans for the future, Mrs. Irving is considering a voyage at sea. — (Canadian Forces Photo)

IODE Hampers for Needy

Regular meeting of Alden, Hamber Chapter, IODE was held recently at the home of Mrs. N. S. Lockyer, Lansdowne Road when plans were made to pack five Christmas hampers for distribution to needy families. The members voted $50 to augment contributions for this purpose.

It was reported that a Christmas present had been sent to the Chapter's adopted child in Malta.

Educational Secretary, Mrs. J. White reported that the bursary of $100 to a student attending the matriculation class of the Adult Education Department of the Greater Victoria School Board, had been awarded.

Mrs. H. Barnes brought the members up-to-date on plans for the IODE Festival to be held in February, and Mrs. J. A. Dunn gave a report on the IODE Centennial Project.

Makeup Wisely Used Can Add to Beauty

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Great-grandmother's makeup kit consisted of little more than rice powder, a dab of rouge and rats for padding out her coiffure. Today's Miss can count as many as 14 basics of makeup, says a New York dermatologist, writing to teen-agers about healthy skin and hair. A 14th would be labelled cleanliness, he adds.

Dr. Irwin Lubowe, a dermatologist associated with Flower and Fifth Avenue Hospital and Metropolitan Hospital Centre, both in New York, listed these basics as he added, "makeup is here to stay... wisely used, (it) can add a great deal to your own special brand of good looks."

They are foundations, pressed powders, loose powders, foundation sticks, rouge, astringents, hand and body lotions, cold creams, cleansing lotions, lipsticks, mascaras, eyeliners, and eye shadows.

"We don't suggest you need them all," said Lubowe "but... know something about each so that you can make your choices wisely and well."

Lubowe's comments on makeup are included in his "A teenage guide to healthy skin and hair" (E. P. Dutton, New York), published recently and written with Barbara Huss, lecturer on health, grooming and cosmetics.

"Always consider cosmetics in relation to your skin coloring," writes the dermatologist. "Whatever cosmetics you use should fit the time and place."

He listed these pointers to teens on applying makeup:

● Makeup darkens on the skin. The combination of natural skin oils and cosmetics turn powders and foundations gradually darker, the longer they remain on the skin.

● You can test a powder shade by rubbing it on the inside of the arm with a cotton pad. If the powder is too light... it will disappear completely in to the skin. If it is too dark, too heavy or he wrong shade, it will show up startlingly. The "right" shade is the one that blends into the skin with a flattering, soft finish.

● If you wear glasses, your eyes should not be too made up.

go easy on eye shadow. Liner along the upper lashline is sufficient. Make sure the line of the eyeglass frame and your eyebrows are in proportion. And to balance your face, use a light, bright shade of lipstick.

● Makeup should never be overdone. Learn to use cosmetics brushes for applying rouge and powder.

● Keep makeup tools and accessories scrupulously clean. A dirty powder puff, for instance, can spread dirt and oils over your skin every time you use it.

Lubowe offered this advice on cleanliness in winter—"You can bathe too often... too frequent bathing can make the skin dry, flaky, and itchy." He suggested a shower or sponge bath instead of a daily tub, saving the tub for "those couple of times a week when you want to relax and take plenty of time."

A section on hair care warned against use of rollers all day or night. Such can damage hair, he said. "We recommend you use them for just the time it requires for the set," he said.

$2,000 Cloth Assists Poor

WASAGA BEACH, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. Mary Dyce, 85, started an anti-poverty campaign in this resort town 20 miles northwest of Barrie when she bought a $2,000 tablecloth in Florida.

The cloth is embroidered and appliqued on sheer linen and portrays Leonardo da Vinci's painting of the Last Supper. Mrs. Dyce says there are only two other similar cloths in the world.

She charges $1 to the public to see the cloth. The money is placed in a box for needy children and Mrs. Dyce then adds an equal amount from her pension.

She donated money to crippled children funds and to Indian children in Northern Ontario.

Going for Broke With $1,000,000

By JERRY HULSE

DALLAS. — "How to spend $1,000,000?" is the hit of the yuletide season in big D.

If this sounds a bit like the title to a Broadway musical, it isn't. Rather, it's a small lesson in how to go for broke at Neiman-Marcus, Dallas' world famous department store. This being the Christmas season it seemed proper to leaf through the store's new catalogue, which devotes an entire section to the subject: How to get rid of $1,000,000 dollars in green.

Right off there's a lace handkerchief at $300. That Neiman-Marcus points out, leaves $699,700. Now they suggest taking two weeks tuning up at the Greenhouse, N-M's new multi-million dollar beauty and health centre ($1,100).

The girl of your dreams, says N-M "will need a bauble for little evenings out" and suggests "our diamond necklace for only $465,000." Having spent a total of $466,400 there's a balance of $533,000. Store executives point out. This can be liquidated by the following purchases:

A $125,000 diamond ring, a $10,000 watch, an $8,975 chinchilla coat, a custom-made sable coat for $75,000, a new limousine tagged at $16,000, $300 plover wardrobe, a $450 parka, a $1,500 crocodile handbag, a $3,500 lounge robe, a $15 gold needle, a $30,000 teapot, a $4,580 set of dishes, a $1,000 bottle of perfume, a $15,000 set of crystal medallions, a European tour costing $4,599.12 and a 25-day cruise with nine pals off in the Aegean Sea on a chartered yacht, $145,802.

Neiman-Marcus suggests that one spend the remaining $101,878.88 on N-M gift coins. Add it all up and it comes to exactly $1,000,000.

Christmas at N-M calls for pampering. Each year there's a special his and her gift item such as the his and her airplanes (1960) costing $236,000. Successive years brought his and her ermine bathrobes $6,850 each, his and her mink chaps $3,500 and his and her balloons (the kind you ride in).

Last year, five put Neiman-Marcus temporarily out of business, but in 1965 they're back with a brand new his and her hit: His and her Para-sails, nylon parachutes you go flying while tethered to a speeding car or boat.

For the small fry there's a child's Rills Royce: $550.

N-M believes in merchandising. Like a while back when they offered a black Angus steer alive and complete with silver serving cart: $1,925. A woman in Sacramento ordered one for her husband. It arrived freshly scrubbed, toenails trimmed and led by a willow cow-girl at no extra cost.

N-M has charge account customers in all 50 states and 40 countries overseas, including Mamie Eisenhower and Princess Grace. Even sophisticated New Yorkers jet in to lace the counters with cash.

N-M's sales girls look like fashion models and the elevators are like a whiff of the Seine; they're sprayed daily with N-M's own special French perfume. Even toothpaste sold by N-M comes in unusual flavors: Martini, brandy, orange curacao, rum and cherry brandy.

If you're on the books at N-M it's like having a guardian angel at the flick of the telephone. One New Year's Eve N-M got a frantic hurry-up call from a customer, failed for drinking too much bubbly. The store supplied the $250 ball, charging it to his account.

Each autumn N-M honors some romantic country of Europe with a fortnight celebration in Dallas. France was chosen for the first two-week bash nine years ago. N-M turned the first floor into a replica of the Place de La Concorde, parked real French cars in the aisles and filled its menus with meals flown in daily from Paris. The next meeting will be held at the Dominion Hotel on Jan. 10, at which Dr. J. Beattie McLean of the University of Victoria will be the speaker.

Taste Improves

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian women have become more sophisticated in their choice of jewelry, says Heer-ma Gutkrecht, with 30 years experience as a jewelry designer. The Swiss-born artist puts this down to "an increasing maturity through education and travel."

Maxime's. This year Austria was ignored. Stanley Marcus notes that was the biggest Austrian event ever held in the United States. The foreign minister flew over and N-M jetted the famed boy's choir clear from Vienna. The year Britain was selected N-M flew over the Old Vic Company. Later when it was Italy's turn they imported an entire Italian opera.

Last year, of course, business was interrupted by a $10,000,000 Christmas blaze (everything's B-I-G in Texas) while branches continued in operation in North Dallas, Ft. Worth and Houston. Only a few months ago N-M opened the Greenhouse. Now diamond-studded dowagers drop by to drop pounds in the "same controlled atmosphere as that of a greenhouse—a rarefied environment for the pampering of women from the United States and abroad." Daily programs are planned by Charles of the Ritz with instructions ranging from care of the skin and hair to the proper method of holding a handbag.

If you coax they'll even teach you how to spend $1,000,000. (Los Angeles Times)

Christmas Tea

The annual Christmas tea of the Soroptimist Club of Greater Victoria took place at the Empress Hotel on Sunday, with about 40 present. Among the guests were Alderman Mrs. Lily Wilson and Mrs. J. R. C. Stevens, whose son Roderick won the Soroptimist Youth Citizenship Award of $100 this fall.

At the recent Soroptimist meeting held at the Dominion Hotel, tribute was paid to Miss Mabel O'Brien, whose death took place in Vancouver, a charter member of the Soroptimist Club of Regina and from 1950-52, the Governor of the Western Canada Region of Soroptimist Clubs.

It was announced that the South American Region of Soroptimist Clubs had been formed as a part of the American Federation to which the Victoria club belongs.

The next meeting will be held at the Dominion Hotel on Jan. 10, at which Dr. J. Beattie McLean of the University of Victoria will be the speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Ove Witt point out places of interest to Mr. Witt's sister, Mrs. Annie Kam, who recently arrived from Copenhagen via Amsterdam. Mrs. Kam, who hadn't seen her brother for 15 years, will be here over the Christmas and New Year holidays. She is also getting to know her nephews and nieces, Christopher, Gregory, Mereta and Tanya Witt.—(Jorgen V. Svendsen)

Martin-Johnson

Victoria to Be Home

PARKSVILLE — White chrysanthemums and pampas grass formed a background in St. Edmund's Anglican Church, for one of the loveliest weddings of the season when Judith-Anne Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Johnson of Parksville, exchanged marriage vows with Larry Dee Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Martin of Brentwood Bay, B.C.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Eric Blackstock. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of traditional white in a Spanish motif of lace over tulle with full hooped skirt. Sequins adorned the scalloped neckline of the bodice which had lily-point sleeves. Her chapel-length veil was held in place with a diamond tiara and she carried a bouquet of red and white roses and lily-of-the-valley. Her only jewelry was a locket, the gift of the groom.

A charming contrast to the bride's frock were the gowns of her four attendants which were identical in floor-length sparkling red velvet. They were styled with skirts, bracelet sleeves and oval necklines worn with matching pill-box hats. All carried bouquets of red and white roses. Maid of honor was Miss Dale Ware, Errington; bridesmaids, Miss Nancy Foster and Miss Elizabeth Cleverly, Parksville, and junior bridesmaid, Heather Johnson, the bride's sister.

Michael Perry of Victoria was best man and ushers were Brian Johnson, brother of the bride, and Tom Dodds of Parksville.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. E. J. Tucker and during the signing of the register, Miss Linda Irving sang "O Perfect Love."

At the reception which followed at the Legion Hall the toast was proposed by George T. Dodds.

Nursing Sisters Attend Parley

Two Victoria Catholic nursing sisters attended a three-day meeting on nursing home care held last week in San Francisco.

Sisters Mary Justinian and Mary Anne Cecilia represented Mount St. Mary Extended Care Hospital, 399 Burdett, at the meeting of physicians, nurses and others directly concerned with nursing homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Cronk, 1448 Vining Street, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Alice to Mr. Gerald Rushton, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Rushton of Victoria. The wedding will take place at 8 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 22 in Belmont United Church with the Rev. Murray Henderson officiating. Miss Cronk is a graduate of the Royal Jubilee School of Nursing, Class 1964.—(Chevron)

Honored At Party

A successful Christmas party was held by the staff of the B.C. department of agriculture Friday evening at Uplands Golf Club. Many of the staff, their wives, friends and superannuated attended. Following a delicious buffet supper the evening was spent in dancing.

The Social Committee of the staff were in charge of arrangements and the party took the form of a tribute to Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Landon as Gordon Landon is retiring from the Department after 40 years' service. Mr. A. H. Turner, Deputy Minister, acted as chairman and called on Hon. Frank Richter, Mr. S. G. Preston of Prince George and Mr. Chas. Wallis, Manager of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture for brief remarks.

Mrs. Marjorie Kidd presented Mrs. Landon with a lovely handbag and W. L. Pope who was Master of Ceremonies presented G. L. Landon with a typewriter and sum of money. Mr. Pope also read a number of letters and telegrams from agricultural colleagues and associates in Canada and U.S.

Kiwanians Honor Ed Mallek

A shoplifter was unimpressed as Victoria Kiwanians heaped praise and honors on Ed Mallek as he retired from the club Tuesday. He got away with a $10 sweater from Mr. Mallek's store, Eddy's, at 1661 Douglas. Mr. Mallek, past president of the club and past governor of Pacific Northwest district of Kiwanis, was the main moving force behind establishment of the Kiwanis Village for senior citizens. He was made a lifetime honorary member, given an illuminated scroll praising his achievements and had a village street named after him. Here he shakes hands with Kiwanis president Wyn Sinclair as past president Jack Lee looks on.—(William A. Boucher)

Town Status Up to Ballots

View Royal Voters Decide on Saturday

By BOB PETHICK

The View Royal township vote was kicked around by about 50 ratepayers Monday night and when the air cleared no one seemed any further ahead. "I think everyone has made up their minds on how they are going to vote and are just waiting until Saturday," said one ratepayer after the meeting. Basic argument by the pro-townshipers is that if View Royal is not organized the government will step in and might ask for amalgamation of the View Royal and Colwood fire districts into one big municipality. Anti-townshipers argue that there is no need for immediate organization of View Royal and back up their argument with a letter from municipal affairs minister Campbell in which he says the question of a town status for View Royal is entirely up to the electorate. Mr. Campbell said there is no legislation that can insist upon a change of status of any improvement district. But pro-townshipers pointed out that under the amended municipal act there is legislation allowing the minister to recommend and act upon dissolving any improvement district. The meeting was told when the View Royal-Esquimalt boundary commission adjourned the commission chairman, J. Everett Brown, said it would adjourn for 60 days to permit View Royal to take independent action. Mr. Brown said if View Royal took no action then ratepayers could not object to the government acting on a petition circulated by ratepayers in the View Royal panhandle area asking for amalgamation with Esquimalt, said Harry Downard. Ratepayer George Blogg said the reason a town was favored was because it offered the best money prospects and would enable the district to stay as closely as possible to the way it is at present.

Tree Planting Costs Plenty

Planting mature trees at Centennial Square at $600 to $700 each ran about $6,000 more than estimated, comptroller James Bramley said Tuesday. He pointed out, however, that other Square projects, such as the senior citizen's activity centre, are underexpended. "When you are dealing with $3,500,000 (the cost of the square) a few thousand here and there is not far off the mark," he said.

Battle Over Rezoning To Be Aired Monday

The rezoning battle between Philip Bushby and Central Saanich council will no longer be a public hearing Monday. Mr. Bushby owns 3.3 acres on Collins Road, just north of the East Saanich Indian reserve, zoned as special commercial property. Council earlier tried to rezone the land back to agricultural use, but Mr. Bushby opposed any zoning changes. The bylaw to change the zoning was defeated in council, when three councillors voted against it. Mr. Bushby operates a boat rental business and a small garage repair service on the property.

He said rezoning the property to agricultural use would cause it to drop in value, and he has consistently opposed any change in the status of his land.

Recount Wins Seat Reversal

KEREMEOS (CP) — An official recount of civic election votes has reversed the result for one village commission seat. In the first count Saturday for the two seats Fred Harris Polled 88 votes, Doug Crow 71, Anthony Affleck 70 and Arthur Peck 65. The recount gave Harris 97 votes, Affleck 76, Crow 71 and Peck 65.

Solarium Seeks Talent For Its Annual Show

The Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League is searching for talent for its annual show to be held March 14 to 19 at the McPherson Playhouse. Needed are specialty acts foreign minister from the country's highest executive body.

In an effort to untangle the chaotic economic situation, the government decreed 1,000 old rupiahs would now be worth one new rupiah. To set a pattern of austerity, President Sukarno also ordered most of the government's fleet of official cars sold.

On the political front, Sukarno removed his foreign minister and first deputy prime minister, Dr. Subandrio, from his post as deputy commander of the Koti, the supreme operational command which serves as a sort of inner cabinet around the president.

Maj.-Gen. Suharto, Indonesia's army commander and the Koti chief of staff, said Subandrio has been replaced by three deputies.

The position of the foreign minister, who helped bring about a close friendship with China, has been obscured since the Indonesian Army crushed an attempted coup Oct. 1 and started a massive drive against the country's 3,000,000 Communists. Subandrio publicly denied being involved in the abortive coup attempt.

Session Preparation Keeps Speaker Busy

Within hours of his return from a five-week visit to New Zealand, Mr. Speaker William Murray was busy in Victoria clearing away a mound of last-minute preparations for the Jan. 27 opening of the provincial legislature.

Mr. Murray, of Prince Rupert, returned Monday from New Zealand, where he attended the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association with Legislative Assembly Clerk Ned DeBeck and Saanich MLA John Tisdalle. He hurried over from Vancouver and started tackling such problems as who will staff the various offices, who will work in the sergeant-at-arms office, who the attendants will be and how the legislative dining room will be operated.

He also has to see that invitations are mailed out to those who may be attending the opening of the legislature. This involves addition of names from a long waiting list to any vacancies which may have occurred by cancellation of some of the applications. The Speaker will also have to see that various items are printed and that seating arrangements are made for the opening ceremony.

Mr. Murray said Tuesday he hopes he can have this work cleaned up sometime today so he can return home and start his Christmas shopping.

Highlight of the New Zealand conference, he said, were heavy discussions by African delegates of the situation in Rhodesia. He also recalled that a long-distance telephone call to Prince Rupert to wish his son a happy birthday cost him $15 because the boy didn't want to say goodbye.

Saanich Home-Owner Complains

Water Pressure Hazard

Excessive water pressure being received at a Saanich home was creating a potential hazard, Saanich public works committee was told Tuesday.

Kennedy Smyth, 2601 Shieling Place, in a letter to the committee said his new house is getting more than twice the amount of normal pressure.

BETWEEN 90 AND 130
He said pressure should range from 30 to 75 pounds, and he is getting between 90 and 152.

He complained that the heavy pressure keeps triggering the release valve on the hot water tank and runs off the hot water. Mr. Smyth pointed out the danger of the heater exploding if the release valve became stuck, or the thermostat developed a fault.

The municipal engineer said he checked the house and found the pressure to register 140 pounds. He said it could be controlled with a special connection.

This posed the problem to the committee of who was going to pay for the special fitting and the connecting—the householder or the municipality.

Committee decided to refer the matter to the municipal solicitor to determine if it was a Saanich obligation.

Garden Notes

Books Best Gifts

By M. V. CHESNUT

As I have often mentioned before, it isn't all beer and skittles living in a garden. Many folks, faced with this problem, decide wisely to steer away from the tools and gadgets and gimmicks and concentrate instead upon the selecting of a good book on gardening. The annual avalanche of letters asking for my recommendations is beginning to flood my desk, and I thought it might be useful if I described a few recent arrivals in my small garden library.

One unusually complete volume is The American Home Garden Book published by Evans-Lippincott and priced at $7.95. This is a big book of 512 pages, profusely illustrated, and covering practically every garden subject from how to plant a pansy to the hybridizing of lilies, with excellent chapters on soil preparation, lawn care, bulbs, roses, vegetables, houseplants and landscaping. The language is simple and it is easy to follow by even the rawest beginner.

Some garden books are designed to be read and enjoyed—browsed through—while others are primarily books of reference which are never read right through but are put on the shelf to be turned to, as with a dictionary or encyclopedia, when you need help. The American Home Garden Book combines both these functions in one volume. Not an inch of space is wasted; even the inside of the dust cover contains a guide to Latin specific names.

I have always had a soft spot in my heart for off-beat plants of any kind, consequently I have had much pleasure from an English book called Rare Vegetables for Garden and Table by John Organ, published by Faber and Faber, London, and priced at 30 shillings. Mr. Organ not only describes a lot of excitingly unusual vegetables and tells how to grow them; in addition, he makes it very clear how they are cooked or prepared for the table.

Some of the unusual plants described are the Tomatilla, an edible form of the Chinese Lantern plant; the Argentine marrow which, when steamed and chilled, makes an easy-to-grow substitute for an avocado fruit; Scolymus or Spanish Oyster, a thistle with an edible root; Chopsuay greens, which is actually an edible chrysanthemum; Bavarian radish, Roka, Australian cress, asparagus peas, rampion, pokeweed and a substitute called Good King Henry. This book also contains something I have never seen in any other volume. A list of vegetables, with their common names in French, German, Spanish and Italian.

Another exciting new book in my small garden library is What's New in Gardening by Dr. P. P. Pirone, plant pathologist of the New York Botanical Garden and published by Hanover House. I forget what I paid for it, but probably around $4. I ordered this one hoping to bring myself up to date on all the new miracle chemicals soon to be available to home gardeners; it does this and a great deal more.

The book covers insecticides, fungicides, fertilizers and weedkillers in a most complete fashion, but goes on to describe new hybrid plants, trees and shrubs, new landscaping techniques, new labor-saving methods and new items of garden equipment.

Over There, Over There... with ARTHUR HOPPE

Yanks to Save France!

"I'm off to the wars, son," said the Kindly Old Philosopher, grimacing as he packed up his kindly old kit bag. "I ain't too old to do my bit in stemming the rising tide of communism."

With a lump in my throat I shook his hand and wished him well in the steamy jungles of Viet Nam. "Viet Nam?" he said. "I ain't about to get bogged down in a land war in Asia. Nope. I'm off to Gay Paree." Now just a minute, I said. No one's fighting any war in France and haven't for years. "We will be, son," he said confidently. "I figure President Johnson's already been on the phone to General de Gaulle, pledging undying U.S. support to preserve the French people's precious right of self-determination. By cancelling the upcoming elections."

Cancel the elections? "Sure, son," said the Kindly Old Philosopher. "You take Viet Nam. We've never been able to hold free elections there for numerous important reasons. The main one being the Communists might win."

"Now look at France, General de Gaulle squeaks through the primary with 44 per cent of the vote. And now he is eyeball to eyeball in the run-off with a Communist-backed Socialist. Who just might win. You can bet your buttons Johnson was on the phone quick as a lick. "Congratulations, General, on your—er—victory," says Johnson generously. "And don't you fret about a thing, I'm personally sending you over 300,000 military advisers I happen to have lying around. Along with Secretary of Defence McNamara. He says we'll have the boys in the trenches by Christmas."

"Now don't thank me, General," says Johnson. "I can do it for Viet Nam and Santo Domingo. I can do it for our beloved French allies. We aim to save their right of self-determination by wiping out every Commie candidate if it takes 20 years."

"But it won't, I been talking to our generals and they say they can lick those lousy Frogs with one hand tied behind their backs. After all, the Vietnamese licked you, the Japanese licked the Vietnamese, and we licked the Japanese. So we're hardly in the same league."

"What's more, they say if you got to fight a war, there's no place like France, it's nice and flat for manoeuvring, good recreation opportunities, no jungles, great targets and they got left-over maps of every hedgerow. Frankly, I ain't seen them looking so chipper in months."

"And as for you, General," says Johnson, "with our support, you'll go down in history as the man who saved his country from a Communist takeover at the polls. You know, kind of the General Ky of Western Europe."

I said I could see where speaking to General de Gaulle like that might cause a war. But I didn't believe a word of it. No one would talk to an ally like that. Not a European ally.

"Maybe not," said the Kindly Old Philosopher. "But we sure should if we're going to uphold the new U.S. Doctrine of Self-Determination."

What doctrine? "Why, the doctrine that allies of the United States have the inalienable right to determine how they want to govern themselves," he said. "As long as they determine themselves Washington's way."

Widows on Easy Street

By SHEILAH GRABAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—June Allyson is still waiting to get the lump sum—more than $1,000,000—from the estate of her late husband Dick Powell. Meanwhile she is doing quite nicely on the $1,000 or so she receives every week, allowed her by the court to maintain herself in the style to which her own efforts as a star and the hard work of Powell, has accustomed her.

Widows sometimes do very well. Producer Jerry Wald's estate, for instance, receives $700 every time Peyton Place seeps into your living room. And that adds up to $2,100 a week. This would have delighted Jerry who was the first to see the money potential in Grace Metalious' best-seller. She's also dead and her estate is enjoying the money.

Elizabeth Taylor never takes chances where Richard Burton is concerned. Liz herself will choose the girl who will be her understudy in her non-speaking role of Helen of Troy. In Richard's Doctor Faustus, at Oxford University, in February. They arrive in mid-January and hopeful young Helens will be lined up for Elizabeth's approval.

You'll never guess what Brigitte Bardot plans to buy when she arrives in New York this Thursday. A machine for making ice cubes. Not sables, not minks. Just ice cubes. Interviewers who wish to keep Brigitte smiling will refrain from asking questions about the son she bore during her marriage with Jacques Charrier. She is simply not interested in children, even her own. The boy lives with his father.

Juliette Greco's more or less steady boy friend, Alain Dreyfus, is decorating a sumptuous apartment on two floors in Paris. He moves in early in January and their chums are speculating on a more or less steady marriage. The Irina Demich baby is expected momentarily. Alexander if a boy, Marie-Emmanuelle for a girl.

There might be a doctor in Rita Hayworth's future. Short, chubby, bespectacled French surgeon Dr. Bernard Cages. They met in Hollywood three years ago, and renewed their friendship recently in France when Rita was making the film for the UN.

Seven Arts producer Ray Stark almost broke his leg again falling out of his chair while laughing at Hugh Griffith's antics as the wild commodore in Oh, Dad, Poor Dad. Yes, it's his picture. Orson Wells huddling with Peter Sellers in London. Producer Charlie Feldman has a plan for the former boy genius to direct Peter.

Tony Randall called to say that he would have to pay $200 for a polio-ridden Arabian horse in Morocco while he was making Marrakesh. But he could have bought a wife for $10.

BETWEEN JOHNSON AND PANDORA

Driver Ignored Faulty Brakes

Courtroom Parade

A driver involved in a fatal accident disregarded a warning that his brakes were faulty, Magistrate J. A. Byers said in central magistrate's court Tuesday.

Ronald Provan, HMCS St. Croix, had pleaded guilty to careless driving. James Smith was killed in the accident on Pandora Nov. 19.

Provan was fined $300 and Magistrate Byers recommended that his licence be suspended for six months.

STILL DROVE

Magistrate Byers said: "It appears you were warned the brakes required an operation known as grinding."

"Your brakes were defective, yet you still chose to drive on the road."

"I think you were following too closely so that you were forced to make a violent swerve."

Court had been told at an earlier hearing that Provan had pulled out to pass a bus that had pulled in to a stop.

"You had room to pass it (the bus) if you had been travelling at a reasonable speed," Magistrate Byers said.

"This accident resulted in the death of a man driving peacefully along, minding his own business."

"No punishment I can inflict on you can bring back that life. I have to do something that will impress on you the need to drive carefully."

Gladys Naylor, 914 Sioux, was committed for trial at the next sittings on four charges of gaining money by misrepresentation.

The Crown alleges that Mrs. Naylor, a grandmother, gained $13,358 by the misrepresentations.

Two men pleaded guilty to three counts of breaking and entering and theft.

Police Detect Phoney Cards

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Two Northwestern University students have been accused of making and selling phoney draft cards. Skokie police said Barry Perselt, 19, of Skokie, and Robert Jans, 21, of Evanston, were arrested after selling two cards to a high school youth. Youngsters wanted the cards, police said, as bogus proof that they were old enough to purchase liquor.

Gunmen Rob Baseball League

CARACAS (AP) — Five gunmen seized the equivalent of $4,200 Monday from the Venezuelan professional winter baseball league. They identified themselves as members of the pro-Communist armed forces of national liberation. The gunmen escaped by car after tying up league director Manuel Lopez and two employees at the league's offices in a university stadium. They overtook $10,000 on a chair covered by newspapers.

Canadian Lost in Viet Nam

Father Missing This Christmas

REGINA (CP) — There is the usual festive tree, bright decorations and gaily wrapped parcels, but Christmas at the Perkins' is different. The family is missing one of its members.

Barbara Perkins is having a difficult time trying to make Christmas the usual happy time for her five children: Leslie, 12; Jack, 10; Janet, 6; Gilbert, 5; and two-year-old Albert.

Two months ago Mrs. Perkins received word her husband, Cpl. Vernon J. Perkins, 37, one of three Canadians serving with the International Control Commission in Viet Nam, was missing when a Courier aircraft disappeared while on a flight from Vietnam to Hanoi.

"It's hard to make plans for Christmas," Mrs. Perkins said in an interview.

Barbara Perkins now has only faint hope that her husband survived. The first official telegram advising her that her husband was missing was followed by a second saying it was believed the wreckage of the aircraft had been found. Later she was told this was incorrect.

The children took the news "hard" but they "bounced back quickly as children do," Mrs. Perkins said.

Cpl. Perkins, who served with

Saturday and Sunday nights and into the Little Dutch Boy Restaurant, 766 Yates, Sunday night. Det. Lester Clark said the pair stole $16.60 in cash from Hocking and Forbes Saturday night and $175 worth of merchandise the second night.

WORE CLOTHES

A large quantity of food, valued at about $100, was stolen from the restaurant. Det. Clark said both men were wearing clothing stolen from Hocking and Forbes when arrested.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Larson had a record of theft and false pretences.

Larson was remanded to today for sentence and Gonzalez was remanded to Dec. 22 for a pre-sentence report.

Colin Moir, 1312 Bay, was sentenced to 21 days in jail for careless and dangerous driving.

Constable Frederick Brodersen said Moir was spinning his car in circles on the icy parking lot at the Town and Country Shopping Centre at 12:35 a.m. Tuesday.

"He was told he would be charged with careless driving," Constable Brodersen said.

Fifty minutes later Constable Brodersen was at the parking lot again. Moir had again been stepping on the gas and braking, causing the car to spin, Constable Brodersen said.

LIGHTS OUT

This time he had driven with his lights out and his car had skidded 150 feet into a concrete pole.

Magistrate William Ostler said: "Something has to be done to make the roads safe."

Moir also had his licence suspended for six months.

Conflicting stories were told by the prosecution and defence witnesses in the trial of two brothers who had pleaded not guilty to causing a disturbance.

Police witnesses maintained there was swearing and shouting by the brothers, Ralph and Robert Roy, outside 1543 Morley at 2:35 a.m. Nov. 27.

The defence witnesses denied there was any disturbance and alleged the only swearing was done by one of the policemen.

Magistrate Ostler adjourned the trial to Dec. 21. The brothers and Kenneth Roy, a third brother, have also been charged with assaulting a peace officer. The trial will be next month.

Magistrate Byers found Peter Kozak of Prince George guilty of stealing $1,100 from the Douglas Street A & W drive-in between July 21 and Sept. 15.

He remanded Kozak to Jan. 6 for sentence.

Prosecutor John McIlwain said he would ask for restitution at that time.

Magistrate Byers said that Kozak admitted he was living beyond his means and said that for the crime to be worked there would have to be co-operation from another in the store.

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

Yesterday's bluff play showed Johnny Crawford committing bridge larceny in the grand manner, as the deal, from Bellanella — a seven-time world champion — did not have to steal tricks; he merely had to find a swindling way to cash tricks that were already there.

Playing rubber bridge in Rome, Bellanella reached the diamond slam after his partner had made a jump-shift. An alternative way to handle the North cards would be to bid only two clubs on the first round, continue with two spades over South's two diamond rebid. Such a sequence might work out better if South held a weak opening with Q-x-x in hearts, for this would give maximum opportunity for South to be declarer at a trump instead of North.

West's bid was the best for the defence, a show-but-bidn't-break show. Bellanella had figured a way to shed a heart loser on one of dummy's black suits. One way might be to establish a long club by ruffing, or declarer could try to cash the spade, hoping for a 3-3 division that would allow him to chuck his heart on the fourth round. Both these ploys seem to fail on the actual layout, but the swashbuckler Bellanella is a specialist at bluffing his way through "impossible" contracts.

Bellanella decided to go for the spade suit to rid of his losing heart, but he boosted his chances, cashing his spades in a special way. He took the spade king, then led the tenacep from the closed hand at overtook with dummy's ace. When Bellanella next led a spade jack from dummy, it looked as though South would win the trick with the dummy's king and ruff in dummy's jack-nine equals — taking a ruff the spade queen in East's hand. If this were so, East would hand declare the slam if he ruffed with a winning trump, for declarer would shed his heart loser. Therefore there's a club, but declarer produced the spade queen, crossed to a high-club and ditched his heart on the fourth round. Whether East ruffed or not made no difference.

Note that if declarer tried to ruff out the club, East throws a spade on the third round of clubs. Declarer can still establish the fifth club, but when he tries to reach it, East ruffs the spade and cashes a heart.

Colonist 500 Fund

Broken Mind and Body Merits Generous Help

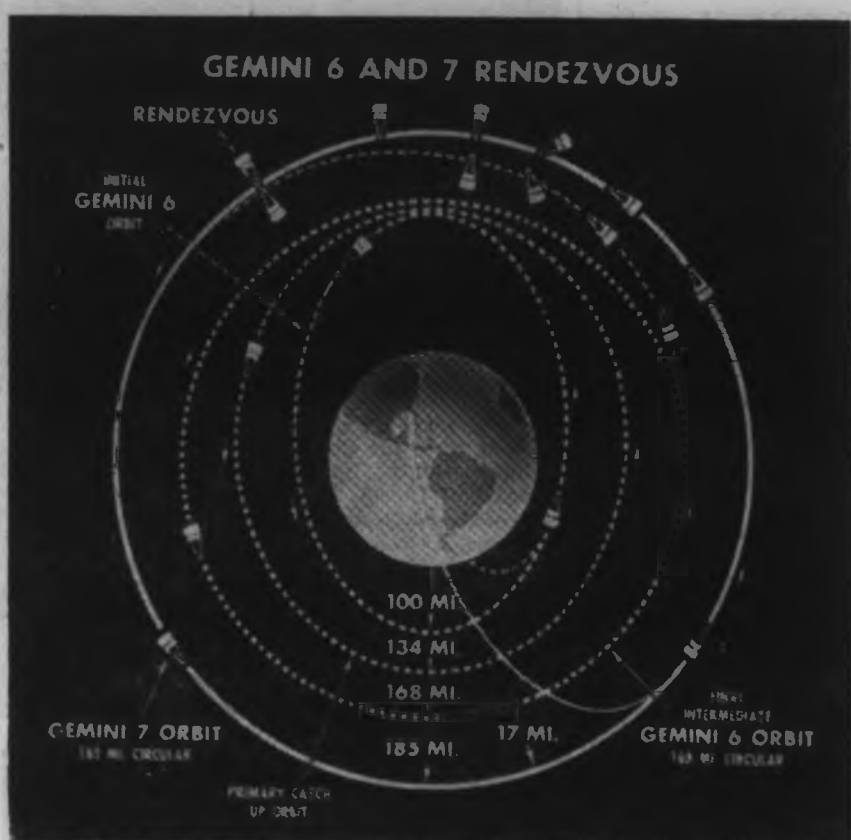

Mr. R. is too ill, both physically and emotionally, to hold a job, and he's alone with his six children. For this broken family Christmas will be bleak even with a gift of cash from The Daily Colonist 500 Fund. But they will be one of the 500 Greater Victoria families to receive help from the fund this year. Mr. R.'s first wife died in 1958 and the children were placed in foster homes for about one year until he met his second wife. In 1960 they moved to Vancouver Island, but because of recurrent illness and lack of training, Mr. R. could seldom find adequate employment.

The family was forced to rely on social assistance. It has been on social assistance virtually all the time since 1963. At one point Mr. R. took a vocational upgrading course in welding and that landed him a job for a short time earlier this year. But his health deteriorated and his attendance on the job became irregular. He and his second wife began to argue.

Rendezvous Blueprint

Diagram above shows how Gemini 6 will overtake and rendezvous with Gemini 7 target craft 185 miles high. Solid line represents orbital path of Gemini 7 in circular orbit at 185 miles. Gemini 6 (dotted line) will first be launched into an orbit ranging from 100 to 168 miles high and trail target craft by 1,208 miles. During the entire approach Gemini 6 will be flying a lower—thus shorter—than Gemini 7 which will permit it to overtake target craft. Three orbital changes are scheduled following the initial orbit. The first of these will raise the perigee (low point) of the orbit from 100 to 134 miles. The second will circularize the Gemini 6 orbit at 168 miles or 17 miles below that of Gemini 7. The third and last will raise the orbit to a circular path at 185 miles, the same as that of Gemini 7, to accomplish the rendezvous on the fourth orbit of Gemini 6. The first orbital change will slow the catch-up rate and allow proper adjustment between the two spacecraft for the second change to circularize the Gemini 6 orbit at 168 miles. The final change will place Gemini 6 on the same orbit as Gemini 7 for rendezvous.

'Crummy, Itchy' Spacemen Ready for Latecomers

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Hunter spacecraft Gemini 6, poised for an historic rendezvous with twinship Gemini 7, has a "go" signal for today's delayed space chase so vital to the United States' man-to-the-moon program.

Only the weather was a potential drawback to a 5:37 a.m. PST launch from Cape Kennedy, Fla. "We're going at the moment and slightly ahead of schedule,"

Boycott Cuba Labor Asks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The AFL-CIO has called on Canada, Britain, Japan and Spain to join the United States boycott on trading with Cuba and help end "military dictatorships in this hemisphere."

launch officials said Tuesday night. Weathermen predicted a return of the dense fog that shrouded the launch complex Tuesday morning, but said favorable conditions were developing and might keep the fog inland away from the cape. The Gemini 7 spaceman, Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman and Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr., getting "crummy and itchy" after 10 days in space—were awed observers Tuesday to a fiery plunge back to earth of a Minuteman missile.

"Bullseye!" Borman cried when a tracking station asked whether he had seen the Minuteman, launched 20 minutes earlier from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California, streak back into the atmosphere after a 5,000-mile flight. It was a spectacular sight, mission control said, and Borman sounded elated. But as the Gemini 7 pilots sped on in space, their attention was centered mainly on a launching pad at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

ANOTHER ITCHY PAIR There, another pair of itchy Americans astronauts, navy Capt. Walter Schirra and air force Major Thomas Stafford, sweated out the third countdown of a Titan II rocket they fervently hoped would launch them in the Gemini 6 spaceship today.

They were itching for a different reason—to get on with a rendezvous mission twice postponed after the pair had entered the spacecraft.

'Biggest Clash Since '62'

NEW DELHI (AP)—India reported Tuesday that a clash between Indian and Chinese troops high in the Himalayas Sunday was the bloodiest since the 1962 border war.

A government spokesman said at least 30 Chinese bodies were counted after the fight, three miles northwest of Sese La Pass, 17,900 feet up in the mountains of northern Sikkim. India's report of her own casualties was two killed, seven missing. China previously claimed at least five Indians were slain.

PGE Walkout Appears Over

Chickens on the Wing 'Cooked' in Own Heat

TOURNAI, France (UPI)—A cargo plane carrying 800 chickens had to turn back Tuesday when two attendants aboard were threatened with asphyxiation by the heat and carbon monoxide generated by the birds.

Overheated air billowed out of the plane when its windows and doors were thrown open upon landing. Many of the birds choked to death.

Black Africa Threat Fades

LONDON (CP)—Britain will not be deflected by outside pressures from its policy of applying economic and trade sanctions—as distinct from armed force—against Rhodesia, Prime Minister Wilson told Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, Nigerian premier, Tuesday night.

As Wilson conferred at 10 Downing Street with the Nigerian leader, it became increasingly apparent that few African governments will break relations with Britain as they have threatened to if Britain has not crushed breakaway Rhodesia by then.

Authoritative sources said Wilson told Balewa he still believes sanctions, properly applied, will topple the white-minority Rhodesian regime of Ian Smith without the use of force.

THROUGH UN

The sources said Wilson feels tougher action against Rhodesia, which on Nov. 11 unilaterally declared itself independent, should be concentrated through the United Nations Security Council, which could call upon all countries to join Britain in its trade and financial embargo against Rhodesia.

ARRIVAL DELAYED

Balewa made a fog-delayed arrival in London to put before Wilson a Nigerian proposal for a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in Lagos next month to co-ordinate action against Smith's regime. His plane was diverted from London to northwestern England and he completed his journey here by train.

Wilson told the Nigerian leader he would consider the Commonwealth conference proposal, but felt the main offensive against the Smith regime would be best directed just now by Britain and through the UN.

OUA RESOLVE

Representatives of 36 African states—nine of them Commonwealth members—resolved at a ministerial council meeting of the Organization of African Unity Dec. 3 to break with Britain tonight if the Smith regime remained in power by then.

Sources here said Wilson has made clear to Commonwealth leaders that if they break relations with Britain their financial aid may be jeopardized.

LEADERS RECONSIDERING

A growing inclination to suspend the OAU ultimatum has been evident in recent days. Such leaders as Ethiopia's Emperor Haile Selassie and Kenya's President Jomo Kenyatta have called for reconsideration. A Commonwealth source indicated Tuesday night that even Tanzania might have a last-minute change of heart.

Guinea Severs Relations

LONDON (Reuters)—President Sekou Toure of Guinea announced the severance of relations with Britain and the closing of the British embassy in Conakry as from today in a nationwide broadcast shortly after midnight.

Canada Accepts Lagos Invitation

PARIS (CP)—Canada has accepted an invitation to participate in a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference on Rhodesia to take place in Lagos Jan. 10, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said Tuesday.

Martin told reporters he believes this would be the first prime ministers' conference outside London. The conference was proposed by Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa of Nigeria as a number of African countries threatened to break diplomatic relations with Britain because London is allegedly not taking sufficiently tough action against the outlawed Rhodesian white regime.

Martin said the Canadian acceptance was sent by Prime Minister Pearson.

He hoped the decision to hold the conference would cause any Commonwealth country which had threatened to break relations with Britain to reconsider their decision.

Zambia Sounds Out Russia, U.S. Views

LUSAKA, Zambia (Reuters)—Zambia said Tuesday night it will send high-ranking ministers to Washington and Moscow to discuss safeguarding the Kariba Dam it shares with Rhodesia.

A government statement said missions will be sent to the two capitals because Britain has consistently refused to accept demands to place troops on the Rhodesian side of the dam.

But the statement said Zambia will not sever diplomatic relations with Britain at present.

It said the government decided to send the missions because it considers it "necessary and timely that the views of other people be ascertained and to this end it has been found necessary to dispatch a high-powered mission of ministers to travel immediately to the U.S. and Russia, two of the leading member nations of the United Nations, to discuss this and other related matters.

For Beating Wife

Runaways' Dad Up in Court

MONTREAL (CP)—Vincio Balent, 45, father of four runaway children who have established a new home for themselves in Vancouver, pleaded guilty Tuesday to grievously assaulting his wife.

Judge Roland Langlois postponed sentence. Balent was arrested on a warrant sworn by his wife and was arraigned Saturday. The beating occurred last week.

Mrs. Balent was in court to hear her husband plead guilty. One side of her face was badly bruised.

Their children, Maris, 17, Milica, 14, Andre, 13, and Draga, 9, ran away from home at the end of August and went to Vancouver with money they had saved.

Maria has been working as a nurse's aide. The other children have been going to school and earning extra money on paper routes to help maintain their new home.

All are wards of the Vancouver Catholic Children's Aid Society, whose officials have described the children's new life as "model."

As Horror Tale Unfolds, Lynch-Mob Fever Grows in Englishmen

No Jekyll in Hyde

By Edwin Roth
Colonist London Bureau

MANCHESTER, England — They look quite human as they sit in the polished defendants' dock of the Manchester court in the industrial Manchester suburb of Hyde.

Again I feel somehow surprised — just as during the Auschwitz concentration camp trial in Frankfurt — that the most gruesome maniacs look exactly like ordinary people. Here too, nightmare abomination is concealed by human forms. Ian Brady, a clerk, is small, slim, very insignificant looking, with a somewhat too large nose, a lot of brown hair over his narrow forehead—and seems younger than his 27 years.

Typist Myra Hindley, 23, is taller than he and looks comparatively stronger. She has much bushy bleached blonde hair which was originally dark, and has smeared plenty of lipstick and makeup on her large face. Her hard expression could give the completely wrong idea that she was a very busy prostitute.

Myra Hindley's black and white suit is the Sunday best of countless English girls. She has a cold—just like ordinary humans often have a cold in December.

Tories End Probe

OTTAWA (CP)—Lawyers for the Progressive Conservative party have completed their investigation of alleged election irregularities in Iles-de-la-Madecine.

A party spokesman said Tuesday that no decision on further action will be taken until party leader Diefenbaker returns from a Caribbean holiday Dec. 21.

FREED FROM JAIL

Charges of irregularities arose when Judge Joseph Duquay of Grindstone, Que., said he was telephoned by Forestry Minister Sauve on election day last Nov. 8 and that Mr. Sauve protested the release of two men from jail to vote. The two men had earlier been charged with threatening a Liberal.

The judge has said he received "at least two, possibly three" calls from Mr. Sauve, Liberal candidate in the riding, an island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

FURTHER ACTION

The party spokesman said that the preparations are being made as though further action will be taken, but he said this will rest with Mr. Diefenbaker. He said there are several courses open under the Canada Elections Act and that it is possible the matter will be raised in the Commons.

PRESS CONFERENCE

Meanwhile, Mr. Sauve has scheduled a press conference here for today when he is expected to deal with the allegations. He returned from Rome Sunday and said he was investigating the charges that had been made.

B.C. Hydro Calls For Tenders

The B.C. Hydro and Power Authority has called for tenders on 18.6 miles of underwater cable from the mainland to Vancouver Island.

The submarine power connection will join a Tsawwassen substation with a terminal station near Duncan, a distance of approximately 30 miles, a Hydro spokesman said.

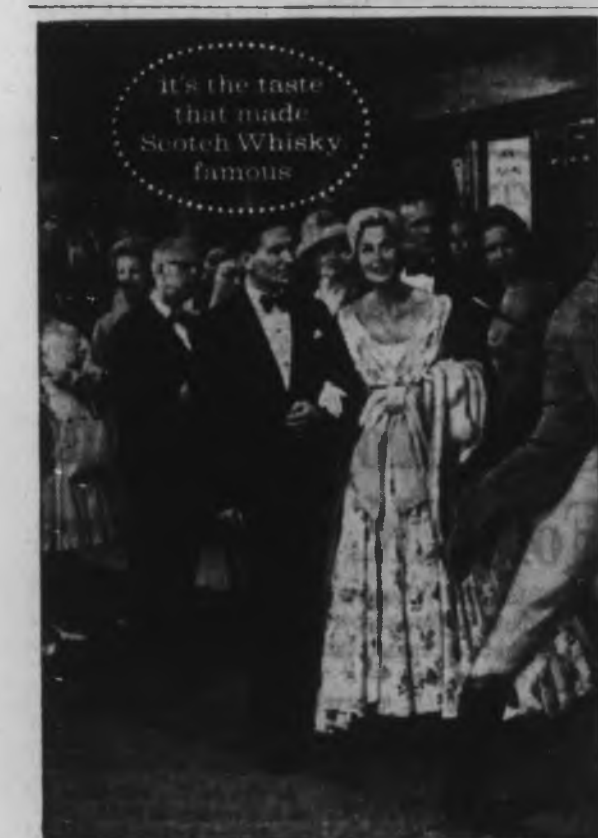

The underwater portions of the line lie between the mainland and Galiano Island, a distance of 18.3 miles. Another 2.3 miles will be under Trincomali Channel.

The remaining 23 miles of the transmission route will be spanned by conventional aerial conductor.

Delivery of the submarine cable will be in the spring of 1968, the spokesman said.

Murder Camp Accused Weeps

FRANKFURT, Germany, (UPI) — The Nazis' alleged bureaucrat of death wept in self-pity Tuesday at the start of the second Auschwitz death camp trial.

Wilhelm Burger, accused of supplying the poison for the gas chambers that killed millions, wept and wrung his hands as he denied doing wrong.

"... I ... We didn't know about all the killing," said the red-faced defendant in West Germany's latest war crimes trial.

"I don't believe you," said presiding Judge Emil Opper.

Burger, his wrinkled red face giving him the appearance of an ailing Santa Claus, and two other former Nazi elite storm-troopers were being tried for their part in running Adolf Hitler's grisliest death factory. An estimated 2,500,000 to 4,000,000 men, women and children perished at Auschwitz.

In August, another German court sentenced 17 other ex-Nazis to prison for their part in operating Auschwitz. That trial attracted massive publicity. It also revived the world's memory of the Nazi era. The resulting criticism of Germany soured many Germans on the trials. The change was evident Tuesday.

Only a fourth of the spectator sets were filled. The trial itself had been shifted to a side street courtroom. The big name lawyers and judges were gone. But the grim subject matter and the defendants' attitude remained the same.

Burger, 61-year-old salesman at Dachau, wept when he told of being jobless in 1932 and thus joining the Nazi SS. He

Foreign Car Trade Hit?

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The establishment of foreign-owned car assembly plants in Canada may become more difficult by the introduction of the Canadian-U.S. car trade agreement. It is felt in automotive circles.

With customs barriers entirely removed, provided certain Canadian content requirements are met, the U.S.-owned automobile firms in Canada are working under a mass market advantage that is not shared by car companies of other countries.

The proposed car assembly plant at Point Edwards, N.S., where it was planned to assemble Japanese cars, has been delayed for at least two years, because of doubts about the potential volume of business available.

MARKET NEEDED

The plant was to have been built by Canadian Motor Industries, a subsidiary of Caltrone Sound Co., which has the Canadian franchise on Toyota and Isuzu cars. It is reported to have sold about 1,800 of the 3,500 cars it has imported from Japan this year.

It is estimated that a market has to be found for at least 4,000 cars to make the Nova Scotia project feasible.

RESCUE OPERATION

Under a new arrangement it is understood that the two Japanese firms will acquire 60 per cent of the outstanding shares of C.M.I. following resignation of the president, D. W. Samuel.

Spokesman for the Japanese firms say it is a rescue operation but the reason for Mr. Samuel's departure was not disclosed. He is reported to have left for Austria.

STILL HOPEFUL

Although the Canadian assembly plant has been put on ice, the Japanese firms are still hopeful they can break into the North American market on a bigger scale than they have been doing.

The only other non-U.S. car manufacturer in Canada is Volvo of Sweden, which is turning out about 3,700 cars a year from its Dartmouth, N.S. plant.

WRECKING MARKET

Other car manufacturers who have been toying with the idea of assembly in Canada are known to have cooled off since it was realized that they would not enjoy the same five-trading facilities enjoyed by the Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. cars.

The pact is going a long way to wrecking the Canadian market for all foreign cars outside of Commonwealth and U.S. preference, in the view of one local importer.

MASSEY TROUBLES

The change-over earlier this year to new tractor models and long expensive labor troubles in its British plants, and drought in Australia, played their parts in reducing the net profits of Massey Ferguson Ltd. for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31.

In a preliminary estimate of the year's results, A. A. Thornbrough, president, says net profit was $40,100,000 ($2.68 against $45,000,000 ($3.04) a year ago.

SALES RISE

Sales however continued to rise for the giant Canadian farm equipment manufacturer. The 1965 total of $808,500,000 compared with $772,000,000 in the previous year.

Mr. Thornbrough said it was believed the 1966 results would show an improvement on those of 1965.

He based his conjecture on the record fourth quarter in which Massey sales rose to $242,200,000 from $184,900,000 a year ago, while profits rose to $16,500,000 from $9,100,000.

DRILLERS GET BUSY

Fourteen oil drilling rigs are now reported to be at work in the Rainbow Lake area of northwestern Alberta. While the frost keeps the ground hard drilling is likely to continue at a fast clip.

NEAR OKANAGAN

An area near Peachland in the Okanagan is being tipped as the focal point of the next B.C. mining excitement.

A very large low-grade copper showing is reported from near the orchard town. It is owned by a private company, Brenda Lake, it is believed.

Apart from the fact that officials of a leading Canadian company are said to be interested, few details of the discovery have been made public.

INFLATION FEARED

Inflationary dangers were noted by William M. Currie, president of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, in his address to shareholders at the bank's annual general meeting this week.

He said pressures were building up to make it more difficult for Canada to maintain its four years of boom growth.

Higher prices for services; shortages of skilled labor; lengthening delivery dates and tightness of the money market were warning signals, but he said that despite these difficulties the economy was still running well.

Community Hall May Be Added

Duncan Will Develop Centennial Park

Alberni Valley residents have only to look at their cars (this one is parked on Third Avenue) to demand action on air pollution.—(Andy Bigg)

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — A park development is unofficially confirmed as Duncan's centennial project.

The city will develop 10 acres of land between Government, the Centennial Heights subdivision, and Boundary Road, into a park that will be an asset to the whole area.

Mayor Jack Dobson said Tuesday "the centennial project fits in with our plans to develop this piece of land."

Council will soon be presented with the centennial project.

Several years ago the city bought the land and winter works crews have cleared part of the bush.

The mayor noted "the only thing that could defeat the centennial project would be a larger scheme on a regional basis."

He said "we attempt to develop recreational areas placed throughout the city so every resident will be reasonably close to such an area."

"We have reached the stage where we have to pay more attention to recreation in general."

If fully developed during the coming years the recreational area between Government Street and Boundary Road will boast a lawn bowling green, little league baseball and softball diamonds, tennis courts, fields for basketball and volleyball, a large play area for children with a wading pool and an outdoor concert area.

The community hall would feature: Meeting rooms, auditorium, indoor swimming pool, gymnasium, children's nursery, game room, pool room and a teenage room.

Thief Scores Unique First and $200

GOLD RIVER—This instant municipality has had one first after another. Now it has its first crime.

Someone broke into the complex at Gold River Beach Camp, the pulp mill site, and

The building is in a complex with a co-operative store, post office and community hall. Const. William Ronnen-kamp is looking into the matter.

The first crime is the first all-electric municipality is being investigated by the first policeman of the first RCMP detachment.

Major Expansion at West Coast

Hospital Unveils $4,000,000 Plan

PORT ALBERNI — Thirteen years after the $1,000,000 West Coast General was opened with a flourish the hospital has submitted plans for $4,000,000 worth of extension and renovation.

Hospital officials said Tuesday plans for the job have been submitted to B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

They provide for construction of a new 30-bed extended care unit and extensive renovation to the hospital which was opened in November, 1952.

Cost would be borne by provincial and federal grants and local money.

Construction would see the top floor put to its intended use as a pediatrics ward. Overcrowding of the children's ward has long been a controversial issue here.

Hospital administrator Harvey Taylor said "in spite of the time this has taken, there has been no procrastination."

"It has taken a long time to prepare the plans."

The plans must still be approved, and some modification may be asked by the BCHIS before construction starts.

MP Tom Barnett expressed pleasure that the plans are finally on their way to fruition.

Deportation After Jail

DUNCAN—Giuseppe Inamdiardo will spend 60 days in Oakalla Prison; then will be deported to Italy.

He was sentenced after Magistrate Lance Heard studied a pre-sentence report on his case.

Inamdiardo was convicted of breach of probation, following a vagrancy conviction in Victoria while on suspended sentence in this area.

Ex-Candidate McKnight Fights On

Money Is Only Solution To Problem of Pollution

Centres Open

Stores Angry Over Hours

NANAIMO — Seven stores at a big shopping centre have decided to open Thursday nights, and the smaller retailers are unhappy about it.

The stores at Terminal Park shopping centre will start a trend that is unpopular with smaller merchants.

BREAKS FACT

Independent Retailers' Association has charged this move breaks a gentlemen's agreement and they may fight back with a Christmas lighting blackout.

Jack Walsh, manager of Overweites at Terminal Park, said stores there will be open until 9 p.m. starting Thursday of this week and intend to continue opening late both Thursday and Friday nights from now on.

UNDERSTANDING

Haig Burns, head of the Independent Retailers' Association, said he had arranged an understanding with the larger stores that opening hours would be from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. on the three days before Christmas.

Now this has gone by the board, and "the smaller stores feel there has been a break in faith," he said.

Mr. Burns said the directors of the Retailers' Association are recommending to members to hold to the 5:30 p.m. closing, except on the agreed dates of Dec. 20, 21, 22, and 23.

TURN OFF LIGHTS

As a protest the directors are urging the smaller stores to turn off their gaily decorated windows on other nights.

Mr. Burns said this was done once before and the "whole town was like a morgue."

He explained that staffing was one of the major problems facing many store owners.

PORT ALBERNI—"The solution to pollution," said defeated aldermanic candidate George McKnight, "is money."

Although he lost Saturday in the only close fight of the Alberni Valley's municipal election, Mr. McKnight says the anti-pollution petition will go on. And on, and on, until the whole island goes into the battle for strong provincial action, if Mr. McKnight has his way.

"The problem won't be solved without an enforceable provincial law," the determined petitioner stated flatly.

"This is bigger than Port Alberni, bigger than MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River. It involves not only pulp mills but all industry."

"The solution to pollution" is money. Money for research, money for installations. Not only here, but at Crofton, in Nanaimo, at Campbell River, Powell River, even Duncan and Cowichan are not free from the effects.

"Rather than bickering over whether or not the petition is 100-per-cent sound and worded perfectly, everyone should be working to let the government know people want pollution controlled."

"Once the government is aware the people will not be content with things as they are, the legal aspects will be worked out by people much better qualified than we are."

Rights Not Denied

"The people must be given a chance to express themselves in a way that the provincial government cannot ignore. The petition may not be the right thing, but at least it's something."

If all the communities troubled by pollution got together and presented petitions, the legislature simply could not ignore the appeal of thousands of citizens."

Mr. McKnight agreed it's good that the city council and the labor council are concerned over pollution problems. He knows, he says, that they have spent a lot of time on the problem "but it doesn't mean anything in pressure on the government."

As for the wording of the present petition, which asks the provincial government to empower municipalities to control the pollution problems, Mr. McKnight did not deny MLA John Squire's right to point out that the Municipal Act already provides such authority.

"If John Squire would sponsor a petition, worded as he wishes, provided it puts the provincial government to some kind of effective action, I would abandon my petition and carry his," Mr. McKnight offered.

Before the municipal election Mr. McKnight stated the petition would go on, win or lose. He pointed out there will be another municipal election next year.

B.C. Airlines

Gold River Gets Service

GOLD RIVER—B.C. Airlines has added this community to its regular west coast seaplane run.

This brings the first competitive business enterprise to affect the instant municipality.

B.C. Airlines service will be in direct competition with the existing service run by Island Airlines.

A full-time agent, pilot, and aircraft (probably Cessna 180) will be permanently based in Gold River by B.C. Airlines.

SCHEDULED FLIGHTS

The firm will include Gold River in the scheduled flights from Campbell River to Tahsis, Zeballos, Kyquoot, and Fair Harbor.

Flying and landing conditions are hazardous on the west coast of the Island, particularly in winter when high seas and gale force winds complicate flights.

Tree Planting Costs Plenty

Planting mature trees at Centennial Square at $600 to $700 each ran about $6,000 more than estimated, comptroller James Bramley said Tuesday.

He pointed out, however, that other Square projects, such as the senior citizen's activity centre, are underexpended.

He then commented, "Next year I will celebrate 25 years as an MLA, and I know how difficult it is." (He was first elected to the B.C. legislature in 1941.)

Premier Bennett announced Tuesday that all of British Columbia's civil servants including deputy ministers will receive salary increases in 1966.

Cabinet ministers, who received a $2,500 salary increase on April 1, 1965, and now receive $17,500 annually plus $6,500 sessional indemnity, will not be given more money next year, he said.

Announcement of the increases was made during a government luncheon at the Empress Hotel for 44 government employees who have completed 25 years of continuous service.

NEXT YEAR

Mr. Bennett did not say how much the pay increases will be, but for the past three years the civil service has received across-the-board pay boosts amounting to five per cent annually.

It means that some 15,500 civil servants in B.C., about 4,000 of them in Greater Victoria, will have more take-home pay in the next fiscal year, which begins April 1, 1966.

The 65-year-old premier, who seemed to be in a nostalgic mood, paid tribute to the Civil Service Commission headed by Dr. H. M. Morrison, and congratulated the employees who had remained with the government for 25 years.

He then commented, "Next year I will celebrate 25 years as an MLA, and I know how difficult it is." (He was first elected to the B.C. legislature in 1941.)

Dr. Morrison told the civil servants, "You people are the career people who have put in 25 years of your lives... the cream of the crop, who are helping build a better province."

Premier Bennett, assisted by Dr. Morrison, presented certificates and personally congratulated each of the long-time employees.

A similar banquet for 74 employees with 25-year records on the mainland will be held in the social suite of the Hotel Vancouver at noon Thursday. Mr. Bennett will again present certificates.

OFFICIAL LIST

Among those receiving certificates were A. H. Hall, registrar of companies; W. A. Bruce, chief inspector for the Liquor Control Board; C. R. Margison, assistant deputy minister of labor; Willard Ireland, provincial librarian and archivist, and Dr. G. Clifford Carl, director of the Provincial Museum.

Others were R. M. Baker, Miss Frances Porter, Mrs. Joyce McGowan, Mrs. Alice Wright, W. A. Bruce, R. M. Chandler, C. B. McIntosh, Robert Mason, G. C. Petticrew, Miss Annie Adairson, M. J. Davis, W. R. D. Hill, Miss Muriel Wright, R. B. Fields, Miss Joan French, A. G. Jordan, W. A. West.

Also, Miss Lillian Conway, S. L. Clarke, N. G. Colvin, William Player, W. D. Carley, Mrs. Margaret Gray, R. D. Higgins, R. A. Stephenson, G. O. Hawkins and G. L. Levy.

Teachers, Trustees Agree on Salaries

GOLD RIVER—First arbitration of salaries has resulted in an agreement between trustees and staff of the new far-flung Island West school district.

The arbitration board set the new salary scale at 4.3 per cent increase on payroll and 2.6 per cent increase on scale.

There were four different salary scales among the areas of Gold River, Tahsis, Zeballos, Esperanza, Fair Harbor, Amal Inlet and Kyquoot.

These areas recently were combined under one school district, centred in the new town of Gold River.

E. R. Hewson, secretary-treasurer of the school board, said many problems were countered as a result of the amalgamation.

Duncan Asked for Grant

Ambulance Needed

DUNCAN—A strong plea for financial assistance came from chairman of Duncan Kiwanis Ambulance Society, George Sinden, and city council has decided to refer to finance committee the request for an annual grant of $3,000 plus a $6,000 donation towards a new ambulance.

Mr. Sinden said it costs about $45,000 a year to keep the ambulance service in working order but most of that money is recovered from pay on runs.

Alone from the city of Duncan the two ambulances answered 74 calls in 1963-64 and 71 during 1964-65.

The volunteer ambulance drivers put in 400 man hours every year and four local women provide an around-the-clock dispatch service.

Mr. Sinden said the total of out-of-town calls amounts to about 50 a year.

He said one of the ambulances has to be replaced in the near future and although his society gets an annual $500 grant from Duncan Kiwanis it is impossible to put money aside for a new vehicle.

Mr. Sinden said the ambulance society has provided this community service for the past 10 years.

A similar request for financial assistance will be put before North Cowichan council this afternoon.

In reference to a story in a local newspaper which criticized the King's Daughters' Hospital board for holding meetings without the press, Ald. Jim Saunders commented the board had gone through six difficult years and if something had been wrongly reported from these meetings "a lot of trouble could have been stirred up and we probably would not be building a hospital now."

Ald. Saunders maintained the present system of handing out information to the press after the meetings is satisfactory.

Council also:
● Learned from Ald. Robert Mason the drilling of another well would prevent people now on the city water system from having to use water from the Cowichan River whenever the system is extended to the Maple Bay area;
● Was urged by Ald. Hamish Muttter to make every effort to keep the centennial train at the Duncan station for some hours so the public can see it;
● Decided to brick up windows at the McKinstry Street pump house after vandals recently broke windows;

● Was told by Ald. Saunders despite heavy rains the Cowichan River is well under control;

● Will consider financial assistance to the Victoria Symphony Society for a special tour of concerts.

Centennial Building Will Sub for Arena

NANAIMO.—More use for the much-vacant centennial building at Exhibition Park is promised when the Civic Arena closes for repairs in February.

Civic Properties and Recreation Commission has given manager Harry Wipperfurth permission to check out of heating the centennial building for use when the arena is closed.

Ald. Bus MacDonald said until now the centennial building has been used only three weeks each year when the Vancouver Island Exhibition is in progress.

In February the arena will get a $60,000 floor job, including new pipes under the floor.

Two of the shows which will go to the centennial building during that time will be wrestling and a dog show.

Commissioners received a cheque for $2,038 from Gyro for reconstruction of the wading pool at the playground near the old hospital, but the Gyro Club wants any future work plans for its equipment to be submitted in writing.

Commissioners Bill Hunter, Art Jordan, and Bill McGregor announced their willingness to stay on the commission for another two years.

PORT ALBERNI.—Mayor Les Hammer has suggested a series of pictures be created to show the significant events in the history of the Alberni Valley.

The mayor suggested this might be a group centennial work by the Valley Art Group. He has also suggested the centennial committee work for the exhibition of notable Indian carving at Expo 67.

The mayor has suggested totem poles might be placed at the junction of Port and Alberni roads on the Parksville-Alberni Highway. He said these would welcome visitors.

FULFORD.—Moose and venison were on the table as the Rod and Gun Club banquet catered to a sell-out crowd.

The food was served by Jean and Carol Bennett, Marion Hollins and Rosemary Bridgen. Club president Gavin Reynolds welcomed visitors from Galiano to the feast.

Awards were presented: Laurie Mount, heaviest fish, senior cup; Gavin Reynolds, heaviest buck; Vic Jackson, Wayne Bradley, Mac Mount, fishing trophies.

Jimmy Morris, Thornton cup for junior; Bob Akerman, heaviest buck in first few days of hunting season; Ben Greenough, best set of horns.

Hidden weight was 123 pounds. Don Irwin and Vic Sampson tied.

Shooting trophies: Cpl. Fred Rhodes, pistol; Capt. Bill Coswell, trap singles; Jim Mollison, trap doubles; Robert Norsen, 22 shoot; Gavin Reynolds, big bore rifle; Cpl. Jack Bragg, aggregate trophy.

ALBERNI.—The Parks and Recreation Commission will be the eventual winner in a bit of old-fashioned horse-trading authorized by Alberni city council.

It was decided that Ocean Cement Company would be allowed the use of sand and gravel from an area owned by Alberni, and adjoining the cement company's own holdings, in return for property on the edge of Roger Creek, on the Port Alberni side of the dividing line.

The property is directly across from Alberni's Roger Creek Park, and will be developed by the Parks and Recreation Commission. On amalgamation, the area on both sides of the creek will become one park area, owned and enjoyed jointly by everyone in the new city.

CUMBERLAND.—The skirl of Sandy Stewart's pipes led the color party into position at the installation of officers for Branch 28, Cumberland Legion.

Guests included members of other Legion branches, and Joe Cairns from Pacific Command.

Mrs. Doris Nicholas, president of the auxiliary, presented a cheque for $600 to Mr. Parnham.

Mr. Parnham said plans to add a second floor to the existing building now await approval of the provincial command.

If permission is granted, the addition would be built at a cost of $25,000.

ALBERNI.—Children walking along Gertrude Street to A. W. Neill Junior High School will at least have a sidewalk. And many a valley motorist will breathe a sigh of relief.

A local improvement bylaw authorizes construction of a sidewalk on Gertrude Street from Burke to Kitsukis.

Every day scores of youngsters walk along this route to A. W. Neill school and a sidewalk has long been considered a necessity by worried parents and nervous motorists.

ward residents to do, it raise the bulk of $50,000 for a community centre.

The centre for the northern Island communities has been approved for federal grants.

But because of the small population in the area, most of the cash must come from residents or donations.

The project provides for a recreation hall on land owned by the community club.

FULFORD.—South Salt Spring Women's Institute celebrated the Christmas season with a social afternoon at the Beaver Point home of Mrs. Emil Anderson. Members received small gifts, which were arranged under a Christmas tree.

Mrs. Ronnie Lee, president, presented a farewell card and gift to Miss V. Sallias.

Miss Sallias, who has been a member for a number of years, is leaving to live in the Victoria area.

"I hope you return often to visit us," said Mrs. Lee. Miss Sallias was a keen worker for this branch of Women's Institute.

CORBLE HILL.—Mrs. W. A. Armstrong has been presented with a life membership in Mill Bay United Church Women.

The presentation was made by president Mrs. J. G. Rodger. Members of UCW were busy making rounds of hospitals recently.

The group made 10 hospital visits, five home visits during November.

Vocational Centre Accepted

DUNCAN—Cowichan school board has accepted in principle architect's plans for a $425,000 vocational training centre.

Plans were presented to the board by architect Hugh Farmer, Victoria.

The school will be built on the grounds of Cowichan high school in Duncan.

Plans now go to the federal government for approval. Ottawa pays a portion of the cost of advances in vocation education.

Chairman Joe Frumento said the Educational Television experiment is working well.

"If we can stimulate two or three kids, it was worth the $5,000 we invested in ETV."

He said the board should not expect too much from the experiment at present, because it is new, and the staff is just getting used to it.

He said "in the long view, it is a progressive step."

This district is only the second in the province (Kamloops was first) to use ETV.

Mr. Frumento said special classes for slow learners are also proving successful.

He said "anything we do in the field of remedial work will save money."

An orientation class for Indian children has advanced beyond the experimental stage, and will be used for observation and practice teaching by University of Victoria teachers as part of their summer course.

The modern mathematics program is now taught. The level system of continuous promotion has been introduced in first and second year. Children are promoted as they are ready, not only in June.

District school enrolment was 4,419 in September 1965.

"The time has come to consider appointment of a full-time adult education director," said Mr. Frumento.
